'WALLY' OFFERS TO GIVE UP KING!

RULING MADE BY FEDERAL JURIST

Test on Pension Next Due for Decision in Boston Court

BOSTON. (AP)—Federal Judge George C. Sweeney ruled today that the federal social security act is legal when it denied George P. Davis of Waltham, a stockholder of the Boston and Maine railroad, an injunction which would have prevented the railroad from paying unemployment insurance.

In dismissing the petition for an injunction, Judge Sweeney said:

"It is a valid excise tax. It does not exceed the powers of congress. It is a tax for the general welfare of the nation."

Plans to Appeal
Davis said he would appeal the decision to the United States circuit court of appeals.

The case, United States Attorney Francis J. W. Ford said, was the first upon which a ruling had been made in the country.

Davis sought to prevent the railroad from making payments under section 9 of the act. He originally sought the injunction to prevent both payment of the state and federal tax, but dropped his action against the state act to allow the federal case to be considered.

Plan Pension Fight
He attacked the constitutionality of section 9 of the act on the ground it was unconstitutional and not an excise tax.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Arthur L. Murray said the old age pension feature of the act, section 8, also had been attacked, but briefs have not been completed and no ruling has been made on that angle of the act.

POPE GAINS STRENGTH

VATICAN CITY. (AP)—Pope Pius, gaining strength in his partially paralyzed limbs, asked his physicians today to permit him to leave his bed at the earliest possible moment.

The doctors, however, joined with the pontiff's intimates by urging him to remain abed and spare himself every unnecessary exertion likely to produce complications.

In accordance with his wishes, the Holy Father was kept constantly informed of the many inquiries concerning his condition. He declared himself greatly moved by the general outpouring of sympathy.

The 300,000,000 Catholics of the world prayed for his recovery during Sunday services that heralded Advent.

A reported improvement in blood circulation allayed fears of the Vatican City household that the blood clot which developed in his left leg Friday might spread through the circulatory system to the heart.

Pastors Hit Toy Soldiers

Mayne Santa Claus will come to town in a tank this year. Maybe the old gent will lay down a barrage of toys from his guns as he rumbles through the city.

Those funny-looking toy soldier cut-outs, you know. The ones that are seen standing on toy building blocks at lamp posts in the shopping district of Santa Ana.

Yesterday ministers who are members of the union recognized the fact that these toy soldiers have attacked Santa Ana and occupied the city, which offered no

Baby Deserted! Anaheim Cops Find Lost Tot

Michael Perumean, of Artesia, took an unexpected ride last night and caused his parents no end of worry.

Michael, who is 23 months of age and is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Perumean, Artesia, went to sleep in the rear seat of his parents' car as they were calling on friends in Downey. When Michael awakened, he was in the Anaheim police station.

His disappearance caused great excitement in Southern California police circles, and Officers Gib Cheatum and Earl Vipond of Anaheim today were being congratulated upon their thoughtfulness in investigating an apparently abandoned car in the business district of Anaheim.

Michael's parents were horrified to discover their car stolen from a driveway in Downey at 7:30 o'clock last night. They immediately notified sheriff's officers, and a state-wide alarm was broadcast. At 2:01 o'clock this morning, the broadcast was received at Anaheim police headquarters.

At 2:33 o'clock, Officers Cheatum and Vipond noticed a car apparently answering the description of the missing machine, parked on East Center street in Anaheim's business district. They peered into the back seat, and there was Michael, fast asleep.

They took the infant to the police station, notified Los Angeles sheriff's officers, and went back to watch the machine in the hope the thieves would return. They didn't.

The child's parents were notified, and a happy reunion followed at the Anaheim police station. The thieves got away.

SHIP UNIONS IN SPLIT

Two Groups Withdraw Aid From Rank and File Strikers

By The Associated Press
Unions representing licensed personnel of strikebound steamers voted today to withdraw their support of the rank and file sailors' strike, now in its 39th day, but voted to continue their own strike to enforce their own demands on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

The Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association and the Masters, Mates and Pilots announced they would withdraw their order of Nov. 25 directing members not to sail on ships whose crews had walked out in sympathy with the Pacific coast strike.

It was said, however, that a strike order of Nov. 23 would stand. This order was issued in protest against refusal of steamship companies to make agreements with the unions.

While Pacific coast ship owners and maritime employees staged competing publicity campaigns seeking public support in the strike, Japanese ship owners at Tokyo announced their lines are enjoying a boom.

Japanese vessels routed to the United States are booked to capacity weeks in advance, they said.

In San Francisco today negotiations between the owners' steamship group and the American Radio Telegraphists' association will be resumed with Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, acting in the role of mediator.

Largest Bomber In Crackup Today

SEATTLE. (AP)—The 16-ton army bombing plane, YB-17, nosed over today after a test flight at Boeing field. Gardner W. Carr, vice president of the Boeing Aircraft company, said no one was injured and the big ship not badly damaged.

She is the first of 13 to be built for the army, and is one ton heavier than the Boeing bomber which crashed and killed two fliers during tests at Dayton, Ohio, last year.

resistance to the onslaught. They were not happy about the soldiers being here.

The ministers did not say much, but they did call attention to the fact that Christmas celebrates the birth of Christ, the Prince of Peace.

The Rev. George Warner, pastor of the First Methodist church, expressed it this way:

"It is unfortunate at a time when the president is on a good will tour in South America and the strongest peace drive that ever has swept America is under way, that a military aspect should be used in street decorations to usher in the holiday for the Prince of Peace."

DELEGATES TO FARM MEET INJURED

Auto Accident Precedes
Opening of Conclave
At Pasadena

Orange county today launched a drive on three fronts for advantages for her agriculture, as California Farm Bureau federation opened its session at Pasadena.

Three persons from Orange county, most important to the convention, were injured last night in an automobile accident at San Gabriel on their way to the convention.

Hit Stalled Car
They were Mrs. Frank Pierce, wife of the director of the farm bureau chorus, Miss Ruth Armstrong, accompanist of the chorus and Miss Lizzetta Phillips, secretary of the chorus.

Their car crashed into a stalled automobile on a rise, injuring all three. Miss Phillips suffered severe bruises to her face and a broken thumb. She was confined to a room in Hotel Maryland. Miss Armstrong was able to take up her official duties last night.

Walnut Men Active
Tomato growers planned to discuss the possibility of cooperative canneries as a solution to the low-price problem which has beset Orange county vegetable growers.

By A. D. Smiley, orange county walnut men pressed a demand that a walnut department be created in the State Farm Bureau federation. This would give them more representation in shaping farm bureau policies.

Meanwhile these men sought a reduction in the compensation insurance rate for bean farmers.

Sacred Concert
They also were to take an active part in recommending appointment of an agricultural man to the state railroad commission.

The farm bureau chorus of 375 voices filled a capacity audience at the Pasadena Municipal auditorium last night at a preliminary event prior to the official opening. It took the form of a sacred concert.

Mrs. Nora Walker of West Orange was eliminated from the women's public speaking contest yesterday afternoon. Mary McArthur of Santa Clara county won the state title and the right to compete in the national finals for farm women.

NAME ROWLAND
JAYSEE CHIEF

Vic Rowland, president of the Associated Students of Santa Ana Junior college, was elected president of the Southern California Junior College Student Officers' Coordination council at the third semi-annual agenda conference of that group, held on the local institution's campus Saturday.

As one of his new duties, Rowland, who served as chairman for the gathering here, is to supervise the next student council conference, which will be held on the campus of Glendale Junior college, March 20, 1937.

Norman Christianson of Fullerton Junior college, and Harold Wieman of San Bernardino Junior college, were appointed agenda chairmen by Rowland for the convocation next spring.

Pomona Junior college volunteered to publish the handbook of the group, which is printed after each meeting and which contains complete details of progress made during that time. In the interest of making the Southland movement national in scope, copies of the handbook will be sent to every junior college in the nation.

Local representatives at the agenda were President Rowland, Betty Lee, secretary of the Associated students; Bob Swanson, commissioner of El Don, campus newspaper, and Tay Riggs, commissioner of Del Ano, year book of the school.

U. S. High Court Okehs State's 'Fair Trade' Act

ALSO UPHOLDS SIMILAR LAW IN ILLINOIS

Ruling Made on Appeal
From Decision Here
By 'The Pep Boys'

WASHINGTON. (AP)—The California and Illinois 'fair trade' acts which prohibit the sale of a standard product at less than a price fixed by the producer were held constitutional today by the supreme court.

Justice Sutherland delivered both unanimous opinions which sustained rulings by the state supreme courts upholding the legislation. The measures were intended to prevent price cutting.

Two Cases Similar
After upholding the Illinois law, Sutherland said the questions presented by the California cases were substantially the same and upon the authority of that decision the decree by the California court was affirmed.

The California law, enacted in 1933, was an amendment to a 1931 measure.

Two cases challenging the California legislation were appealed by a corporation known as 'The Pep Boys, Manny, Moe and Jack of California,' a dealer in automobile accessories, and by Clarence Kunsman, operator of a Beverly Hills drug store.

They contended they had not bound themselves by any form of contract to resell the commodities concerned at any specific price and that they had the legal right to sell them at cut-prices if they so desired.

The litigation was started originally by the Pyroll Sales Company. (Please turn to Page 2, Col. 1)

MRS. HEWITT TO BE RETURNED

TRENTON, N. J. (AP)—Gov. Harold G. Hoffman today ordered Mrs. Mary Cooper Hewitt extradited to California to face mayhem charges growing out of the sterilization of her daughter, Ann.

The announcement was made by the governor through Albert B. Hermann, executive clerk, in charge of extradition matters. Gov. Hoffman acted after receiving a written opinion from Attorney General David T. Wilentz that Mrs. Hewitt was a "fugitive from justice."

Five Found Dead
In Tourist Cabin

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—John Butler found three women and two men dead in a cabin at his tourist camp, two miles north of Fayetteville, today under circumstances which led investigators to believe they had been asphyxiated.

Police identified the victims as: Bert Atkinson, 45, Fayetteville restaurant operator; Bill Reed, 30, Fayetteville photographer; Mrs. Mabel Todd, 25, Huntsville, Ark.; Alice Taylor, 25, Springdale, Ark. The third young woman was not identified immediately.

The five were only partly clad. Butler said he forced his way into their cabin after they failed to respond to his call.

PLAN FATHER-SON MEET
Tomorrow night at the Elks club the organization will indulge in a father and son gathering, at which refreshments will be served, and a moving picture program presented.

King's Romance Gaining Support

Popular support for King Edward's plans to marry Mrs. Wallis Simpson despite the government's adamant opposition was growing throughout Great Britain as crowds demonstrate on behalf of the monarch. Everything was smiles for the king and Mrs. Simpson when this hitherto unpublished photograph, radioed from London, was taken at the Ascot races a year ago. (Associated Press Photo)

Aimee Aide Sues Rheba on Slander

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Rheba Crawford, associate pastor of Angelus Temple, was named defendant today in a $100,000 slander suit by a temple worker who charged she accused him of making love to Aimee Semple McPherson. The suit was filed in behalf of Ernest Thomas Eade, scenic artist at the temple, by Wilfred Andrews, counsel for Mrs. McPherson.

Eade charged that Miss Crawford, who has brought a $10,000-000 slander action against Sister Aimee, made this statement about him:

"He has been making love to Sister Aimee and I have the goods on him!"

Miss Crawford made the statement, the complaint set forth, to Andrews on Nov. 8, at 11:45 a. m. she uttered other remarks, Eade alleged, which were false and malicious and "made for the purpose of defaming, disgracing and injuring him, and to cause him to be held up for hatred, contempt and ridicule."

The complaint quoted Miss Crawford as saying:

"Sister Aimee has been telling falsehoods on the platform at Angelus Temple. I know because I have listened to her on the radio."

"I am going to take her radio license away from her and if she sends me to the branch churches to preach, I will tell about Mr. Eade and how I went to his wife and prevented her from suing Sister Aimee for alienating the love and affection of Mr. Eade."

"He has been making love to Sister Aimee and I have the goods on him!"

The strength of the king's case, such as it is, lies in the circumstance that everyone loves a lover, even and perhaps especially when his love affair is ridiculous. Its weakness lies in the fact that the respect of the world is reserved (Please turn to Page 2, Col. 5)

Report Zeppelin In Difficulty

PARIS. (AP)—The Havas (French) news agency reported today the Zeppelin Hindenburg, apparently in difficulty, passed over Nevers late in the afternoon. A previous report, Havas said, from Amneville, near the Swiss border, was that the big ship had made a forced landing in the mountains.

HAS NO WISH TO DAMAGE MAJESTY

Announces She'll Step
Aside to Protect
Edward's Throne

CANNES, France. (AP)—Wallis Warfield Simpson announced today she is ready to give up King Edward so that he may retain his throne.

Mrs. Simpson in a signed statement handed to the press by Lord Brownlow said she was ready to give up Edward to save the throne of the British empire.

"Throughout the last few weeks I have invariably wished to avoid any action or proposal which might hurt or damage his majesty or the throne," the statement began.

"Today my attitude is unchanged and I am willing if such action will solve the problem to withdraw forthwith from a situation that has become unhappy and untenable."

The statement was given out by Brownlow at the gates of the villa where Mrs. Simpson was been staying. He made no comment after reading it aloud.

Mrs. Simpson's statement today came after telephone calls to England in which she was believed to have talked to Edward.

Lord Brownlow, who read the statement, is the king's gentleman-in-waiting.

BALDWIN GIVES KING
MORE TIME TO "DECIDE"

LONDON. (AP)—England's first minister, Stanley Baldwin, assured Britain and the world today that King Edward will not be rushed into abdication in a plain-spoken pronouncement interpreted as a definite indication that the sovereign wants Wallis Simpson as his wife, not his queen.

Mentioning Mrs. Simpson's name for the first time in any public statement he has made, Baldwin assured the empire's parliament that King Edward will have ample opportunity to "weigh the decision." (Please turn to Page 2, Col. 3)

JAYSEE SEEKS STATE TITLE

Negotiations were under way today for a mythical state championship football game between Santa Ana and Modesto junior colleges for Friday night—preferably to be played in the Municipal bowl.

The Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce, through President Rex Kennedy and Secretary Howard Wood, agreed to back the game when contacted today by Chief Floyd Howard of the police force. Howard is one of several prominent local men seeking a state playoff.

D. K. Hammond, director of the junior college, is in favor of the game, but must secure the approval of conference commissioners tonight, he said. The playoff would bring together the most successful junior college teams in California. Santa Ana won the Southland title from Los Angeles, 9-0, after a perfect season in the Eastern conference. Modesto is champion of Northern California.

The Chamber of Commerce football banquet Dec. 15 has been postponed because of an Elks' dinner on that night.

ANKARA, Turkey. (AP)—More than 100 persons were drowned today and 300 others injured in floods which swept over Adana, southern Anatolia.

Locked in a Frozen Palace!

Little Gudrun, daughter of Nils the Viking, was locked in the palace of the Ice Queen. Her father wandered 300 years seeking her. Finally with Santa's help, he discovered the beautiful girl. This fascinating Christmas serial starts today on page 7. More and more people are reading The Journal—it's more interesting.

VULE PREVIEW LURES CROWD OF 10,000

Santa Ana's Christmas season was well under way today after an auspicious and colorful opening program Saturday night which saw around 10,000 persons in gay holiday mood thronging the business streets of the city.

It was one of the largest crowds ever to attend a similar event in this city. Phil M. Brown, general chairman of the merchants' committee on the Christmas program, and Secretary Howard I. Wood of the chamber of commerce, estimated today that approximately 10,000 persons were on the streets and in local stores Saturday night.

Sparkling Beauty
Close to 7 o'clock Saturday night, lights in all stores began flickering off, the signal for an expectant hush to fall on the thousands gathered in the streets. Then the beautiful song, "Break Forth, O Beauteous Heavenly Light" swept out from the central public address system. In a brief invocation, the Rev. Harry Evan Ovington told the deep significance of Christmas time and appealed to Santa Anans to unite in a spirit of charity, helpfulness and brotherly love.

When the lights flashed on, a scene of sparkling beauty was unfolded to the crowds which jammed the sidewalks. Thousands of colored lights gleamed on 150 sturdy silver fir trees. The giant toy soldiers presented arms and stood at attention. Lights flashed on in the store windows, drawing attention to the attractive array of Christmas gifts.

Decorations at Fourth and Main streets were particularly effective where garlands of lights and Christmas greenery were draped across the streets, surmounted by a gleaming star.

Santa Popular
While a four-hour musical program was sent out over the public address system, gay shoppers and visitors jammed the streets and stores. The main point of interest for those with children was Santa Claus, who played host to hundreds of children, found out what they wanted for Christmas and presented each with a stick of candy. He was seen at several stores.

The musical programs to be presented from now on will consist of a 15-minute recorded Christmas program during the noon hour, and a full hour of music each evening. Most stores will start remaining open evenings on Dec. 19, it was announced today by General Chairman Brown, although some of the stores plan to stay open evenings from now on.

OTHER SIAMESE TWIN DIES

NEW YORK. (AP) — Surrounded by the secrecy that marked the death of his brother, Lucio, 11 days ago, funeral services for Silvio Godino, 28-year-old Siamese twin, were expected to be held here tomorrow afternoon.

Simplicio, who died Saturday night from spinal meningitis, was separated from the body of his brother after the latter's death from rheumatic fever in York hospital here. Surgeons cut through a band of tissue 24 inches in circumference to free the live twin from the dead.

Simplicio was improving and planning to learn to walk alone when the spinal affliction foiled the efforts of the surgeons. While the family demanded secrecy from the undertaker it was learned that Simplicio's body will be buried beside that of his brother in a Westchester cemetery.

Death Comes to Mrs. Oda Howe

Mrs. Ada Howe Street, 68, formerly of Santa Ana, died yesterday in Los Angeles. She was a niece of the late James T. Smith, and is survived by her husband, William Street of Compton, and a cousin, Mrs. Lottie Gressler of Hollywood.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 2 p. m. from the Winbigler Mortuary chapel, with cremation in Fairhaven cemetery.

MORE ABOUT FAIR TRADE

pany, Inc., of Los Angeles county, which sells a trademarked lubricating substance, and Max Factor, a Delaware corporation and Sales Builders, Inc., a Nevada corporation. The first company sought an injunction to restrain The Pep Boys from selling its product at a cut price. The two latter companies wanted to enjoin Kunsman from doing likewise with their cosmetics.

Rules On Others
The court delivered opinions in 17 of 28 cases that have been argued. One of five New Deal cases pending before the high tribunal was concerned in the decisions. The justices returned to the District of Columbia supreme court, for a new examination, the government's petition that trial of cases challenging constitutionality of the utility holding company law be held up until a test is obtained in the government's suit against the Electric Bond and Share Company.

The court deferred until at least next Monday a decision on four other New Deal cases.

'Judgment Day' Approaches For Local Players

Wednesday night will witness the initial presentation of Elmer Rice's drama, "Judgment Day" by the Santa Ana Community Players. It is one of their most ambitious attempts, for it necessitates an unusually large cast, and extremely sympathetic and artistic portrayal of the various characters who are involved in the political entanglement around which the plot centers.

Particularly forceful and unusual are the parts of the five judges who form the high tribunal before which George Khitov (Robert Guild) and Lydia Kuman (Marion Bruner) are on trial for attempted assassination of the dictator of a mythical central European country.

Clad in their long black robes, the judges are of widely-varied types, and their portrayal by outstanding Santa Ana citizens promises to be exceptionally convincing. Mayor Fred Rowland is not only a dignified judge in the part of Jon Sturiza, but provides excellent comedy touches. George Tobias, in contrast, plays the ruthless Dr. Panayot, while John Swarthout as Count Leonid Slavski is forceful, impressive, and sincere.

Ray Adkinson plays with amazing naturalness a part quite foreign to his character, that of Prof. Paul Murisli, the weak and vacillating judge, while Gordon X. Richmond enacts the role of Dr. Michael Viora, the presiding judge, with a commanding presence, a powerful voice, and a beautiful interpretation of lines.

COUNTY ROAD BUDGET MAY BE CUT

Orange county's $1,044,750 roads budget for 1937 was in the hands of the state highway commission today. However it probably will be revised downward before being accepted.

Road Engineer Nat Neff presented the budget to the commission late last week. While the commission accepted his figures, it did not approve them.

Both Neff and P. A. Stanton, member of the highway commission from Orange county, said today that lack of funds in the state probably would entail some revision of the Orange county budget, although they were not prepared to say in just what way.

Several major projects are included in the budget as presented by Neff, with the preliminary approval of the county board of supervisors.

One calls for the expenditure of $225,000 for extension of South Main street to Corona Del Mar and construction of a bridge across the upper arm of Newport bay. Another calls for expenditure of approximately $150,000 for the addition of a fourth lane to Manchester boulevard within this county.

Opening of North Glassell street and rerouting from Taft avenue into Olive would cost $100,000, and the extension of the Imperial highway to the Santa Ana canyon would cost about $150,000. Two bridges over Santiago creek, at Glassell street and Tustin avenue, also are included, at an approximate cost of $50,000 each.

SCOUTS' WOOD PILE GROWS

The business of chopping wood for the fireplace, a job boys don't usually like to perform, won't bother some 100 Orange county Boy Scouts who attend the county council's winter camp at Rokili in the San Bernardino mountains, Executive Harrison White assured them today. They already have 20 cords of wood ready to burn.

White is beginning to take reservations for the camp, to be held for the week following Christmas, and expects an even 100 registrations from county Scouts.

He reported the first real cold snap of the season, with possibility of a heavy snowfall before the camp opens, and ice on Jenkins lake. A truckload of provisions will leave here for camp Rokili this week, to be prepared by Tom Devine, camp cook.

White promised the boys plenty of winter sports, mountain scenery, and a chance to look over the wild life. Mountain lions, he reported, have been pursuing a number of small deer, who have been fleeing into the camp for shelter.

"They're fixing up the toboggans, and the ice looks as though it would be in good shape," White said, "so the boys can make stars on the ice with their feet as well as with other parts of their anatomy."

60 PER CENT OF TAXES PAID

At least 60 per cent of tax assessments in Orange county were paid before the deadline for first half installments Saturday, Tax Collector John Lamb estimated today.

The total assessment for the 1936-1937 fiscal year is $4,527,699.50. The second semi-annual payment is due in August. A report on the total collection for this period will be released by the tax collector's office next week.

Homecoming for Jaysee Discussed

Plans for an alumni Homecoming day, the possibility of offering alumni season tickets to football games, and a Christmas dance on Dec. 18 at the Huntington Beach Municipal auditorium were discussed at a meeting of the Santa Ana Junior College Alumni association officers held Friday at the home of Ray St. Clair in Villa Park.

Alumni who have changed their addresses are requested to report these to Mrs. Violet Bartholomew at the junior college, according to an announcement made by Jack Gould, president.

CITRUS PEST WAR AWAITS ZERO HOUR

Orange county citrus growers today were awaiting the zero hour to launch a war on pests which will cost them between a quarter and a third of a million dollars. Arrival of suitable weather will be the signal for marshalling their forces on a wide front.

Agricultural Commissioner D. W. Tubbs said today that the work will get under way within the next week. Pest control work during the winter months is confined mainly to fumigation. Ordinarily the fumigation work starts late in November, but unfavorable weather has delayed the program.

During the year Orange county agriculturists spend around a million dollars in pest control, Tubbs said. Pest control measures during the summer consist mainly of spraying.

Pest fumigation shots are being made now, Tubbs said, and as soon as tree conditions are right the annual winter fumigation program will be launched. More rain and cold nights are needed to harden the trees so they will not be injured by fumigation.

MORE ABOUT KING EDWARD

cision" between heart and throne. Keen observers of the situation said Baldwin had not only pushed the question of abdication into the future but had confirmed what they already felt to be a fact—that the king never has suggested to the government that he make Mrs. Simpson his queen.

Instead, with the title of Duchess something or other, she would be his wife-like hundreds of thousands of other wives, keeping her household together by the exercise of those domestic arts of cooking, entertaining, and finding good servants for which Mrs. Simpson already is well known.

Oppose Legislation
But Baldwin has already said that whoever marries the king will become queen unless the basic law is changed, and that the government is not prepared to change it to provide for morganatic union.

As for the king's decision, Baldwin also said the monarch himself "will no doubt" communicate his decision in good time "to the governments in this country and the dominions."

It was the first time the plain-spoken Baldwin had so much as mentioned in public the name of Mrs. Simpson, whose decree nisi from Ernest Simpson, one-time king's guardsman, becomes final next April 27.

Baldwin's Answer
A tense breathless chamber heard the prime minister declare "it has always been, and remains, the earnest desire of the government to afford his majesty the fullest opportunity of weighing the decision which involves so directly his own future happiness and the welfare of all his subjects."

That was Baldwin's answer to the brilliant Winston Churchill, who has warned the government against trying to "extort" abdication from the sovereign.

Thus he pushed further into the background the prospect of abdication for the world's mightiest throne—yet, at the same time, declared both the government and the king were at "considerable prolongation of the present state of suspense and uncertainty would involve the risk of gravest injury to the national and imperial interests."

Parliament in Uproar
Baldwin, again in direct reply to Churchill, asserted the government had advised the king only on the question of morganatic marriage, and then, in a "strictly personal and informal manner."

Is was an uproarious, partisan throng in the dim-lit old chamber which received Baldwin's long-awaited words.

Churchill, the man who might head the government if Baldwin and his ministers resign, struggled vainly to get an answer to his repeated demand that the prime minister assure the house he will take no "irrevocable step."

Bedlam Reigns
Shouts of "No! no!" from all parts of the chamber created a bedlam. A liberal and a Laborite pressed the prime minister with barbed, supplemental questions, the latter on whether Baldwin would accept the opinion of the house on morganatic marriage.

Cries of "order!" from the government benches broke up the debate as Baldwin refused to deal

SUFFERS HEAD INJURIES IN ACCIDENT

With a possible skull fracture and internal injuries, Clifford Crane, 21, Westminster, was under treatment at St. Joseph's hospital today for injuries sustained in an automobile accident Saturday afternoon. His condition was serious.

Crane's car collided at Katella and Haster roads with an auto driven by Edward L. Rogers, Garden Grove, according to California highway patrol officers.

Driver Jailed
Richard Kraft, Anaheim, was injured Saturday afternoon when he was struck by a car near Anaheim. The driver of the car, Lupe Estrella, was jailed on felony drunk driving charges.

Eight-year-old Esther Zornosa, 1425 West Sixth street, was being treated in St. Joseph's hospital for a broken leg, incurred Saturday when she was knocked from her bicycle on West Fifth street by a car driven by James E. Davis, 25, route 3, Santa Ana, who said he did not see the girl until she rolled out of the overturns.

Car Overturns
Carrie Boege, 50, Anaheim, and Margaret Boege, 13, were given treatment at Fullerton General hospital after their car collided with an auto yesterday afternoon on Placentia avenue. The Boege car struck an auto driven by Rose Phillips, 45, Los Angeles, then overturned.

Michael Doarcas, 72, was being treated at the county hospital today for several fractured ribs and a broken shoulder. He was struck by a car in Orange Saturday afternoon, attendants at the hospital reported.

Rita de la Riva, 1906 West Second street, was cited for driving a truck without an operator's license after the truck collided yesterday at First and Main streets with another car, then damaged a light pole.

Hits Light Pole
The truck collided with an auto driven by Sherman Anderson, Tustin, then hit the pole, slightly injuring Felipe de la Riva, 70, and Beatrice de la Riva, 9.

Casario Pinion, 20, Garden Grove, and Al Sheetz, 30, West Second street, were slightly injured Saturday night when Pinion's car was struck by an auto driven by Ralph Espino, 34, 1321 West Third street, on West Fifth street.

Autos driven by Richard M. Porter, 53, 424 West Pine street, and Mrs. M. Carter, 935 English street, collided yesterday at Washington and Bristol streets. A small child riding with Mrs. Carter, suffered from a bumped nose.

Hit-Run Report
Autos driven by Raymond S. Maurer, 43, Long Beach, and W. E. Evans, 45, Midway City, collided at Ocean avenue and Huntington Beach boulevard Saturday night. Neither was injured.

Clarence Sprague, 25, 1920 Victoria drive, reported to the highway patrol here a hit-run accident in Huntington Park Saturday night when Sprague's car, backing from a parking place, was struck by a sedan which failed to stop. Sprague took the license number and reported it to officers here for a checkup.

EXPECT ROAD OIL BLAST

A cloak of secrecy covered deliberations of the grand jury today, as it entered the last phase of its investigation of the county road oil mixup.

Courthouse officials, however, were expectant of "big things" to come, as the grand jury recalled a number of witnesses who already had appeared on the oil question. One official, who asked to remain nameless, said he had been informed the jury would "blow the lid off" today. At noon there had been no explosion.

Feeling was general that the deliberating body would file at least a partial report on its oil investigation prior to its adjournment.

John Ackerman, advertising manager of the Santa Ana Independent, which touched off the oil investigation with its publication of chemist's reports showing a reported deficiency in various samples, was subpoenaed by the grand jury today.

Also to appear were Chairman Mitchell of the board of supervisors for the second time, William Iverson, official of the Eden Refining company, for the second time, and Supervisor N. E. West.

with "hypothetical" situations. For 10 minutes, the whole, hushed house listened intently to the prime minister's deliberate voice.

Premier Wins Hand
Then the disorder burst out, to be climaxed by sustained cheering when the Liberal, George Lambert, expressed the chamber's "deep personal sympathy" for the premier. It was apparent the majority of the chamber was frankly hostile to Churchill.

MORE ABOUT MENCKEN

for him who plays the game according to the rules.

Has Edward done so? It must be manifest that he has not. There is between him and his lieges a definite contract, no less explicit because it is mainly implied. They agree on their side to yield him certain valuable deferences, honors, prerogatives and powers, the widest and most glorious today, any man on earth enjoys today. And he agrees on his part to conduct himself according to certain precise patterns, many of them out of harmony with the normal inclinations of man.

What He Can't Do
Some of the articles that bind him are well known. He has no vote, and may not whop for this or that candidate at election time. He may not accept an engagement in the moving pictures.

He may not open a cocktail lounge in Piccadilly, or even a haberdashery shop or insurance office in the Strand.

He may not become a Roman Catholic, or a Moslem, or a Christian Scientist, though many millions of his subjects subscribe to those faiths.

He may not be converted publicly to communism, or fascism, or nazism, or any other political theology not official in his country.

He may not go about his public duties in slacks or overalls, but must dress up for every occasion in the garb deemed suitable for it.

They're His Property
The army and navy of the empire, in the eyes of its law, are under his personal command and under his property, but he may not disband either of them without the consent of parliament, or send them upon enterprises that parliament disapproves.

The list of such obligations is very long, and some of them are undoubtedly onerous. But he took them on when he took the oath as king, and he can no more evade them without dishonor than he could evade his obligation to be dutiful to his mother.

Not the least of them is his duty to contract no marriage that violates the mores of his realm, as those mores are interpreted by the constituted authorities, spiritual and secular.

But Not the King
You and I are free, as private men, to marry any women who are optimistic enough to have us, but the king of England has no such liberty. For he is not and never can be a private man, however hard he may try to think so; he is the ruler and symbol of a great empire, and the stamhalter of a dynasty.

It must be plain that the marriage he proposes is not suitable to that status.

I am quite willing and indeed eager, as a fellow Baltimorean, to admit the lady of his choice is a model of grace and virtue.

She would make him a conscientious wife, and what is more, she would add greatly to the joys of human existence at his court. But the fact remains that the king of England simply cannot have a couple of morganatic brothers-in-law hanging about the back door of the palace.

Prejudice Is Deep
He may not marry a woman whose previous adventures in carnal bliss have gone beyond the point held to be seemly by his people. He may not flout a prejudice as deep, if perhaps as irrational, as the sturdy English prejudices against steam heat, thin underwear and edible cooking.

The cheers of the London mob need not detain us. It is made up in part of malicious persons, eager only to afflict the government, and in part of mere idiots. Its opinion is the sober and considered opinion of the British people. For good or for evil, the true Britons are opposed irrevocably to the innocent, artless polygamies of Hollywood and Long Island.

And despite their natural human sympathy for a man fighting desperately for his girl, they are also open irrevocably in favor of playing every game according to its rules.

He Shocked Them
In that field Edward has failed them, and hence shocked them. They have been giving their allegiance to a man who seemed to be, and was assumed to be, the gaudy incarnation of all the ancient decorums they so furiously venerate. They find themselves confronted by a jazz-baby—willful, petulant, irresponsible and preposterous.

It is almost as if he had been caught robbing a hen-roost or joining the circus. The people of the United States would have been quite as shocked if their President had revealed himself in the same character, and proposed to launch into the same folly. Nay, even the people of Mongolia would have been shocked.

Will his majesty throw off the cabinet and marry the lady? I do not undertake to answer, for I retired formally from prophecy on the black Wednesday following the first Monday of last November. But whether he fights his way to the altar or falls by the way it must be obvious that he has brought himself to ruin, and that he'll be lucky if he doesn't involve in that ruin all the other members of his family.

Among the notched towers of Fort Belvedere, his country lodge, the king himself kept in touch with Baldwin through his legal adviser, Walter T. Moncton, K. C.

He talked by telephone, too, to Mrs. Simpson—secluded carefully in a Cannes villa and announcing, through an intermediary, she would remain there indefinitely.

Arrested by city police at First and Flower streets early yesterday, he already owed the city $100 on a previous fine. GIRLS' GUARD CROSSINGS

Nine comely traffic guards went on duty at local school crossings today, but it wasn't certain that they would have a permanent job.

The police department today stationed nine of the lassies, who are made of wood, at various school intersections to test the value of using the wooden girls as a warning for motorists.

Chief of Police Floyd W. Howard said today that he is not certain that the plan will be continued, but he thinks it is a good idea. The "girls" are attired in conventional middie and blouse, and are mounted on a solid metal base. Signs in their hands warn the motorist to proceed cautiously.

NEW FIGHT ON SEWER PIPE LOOMING

Special Meeting Called For Outfall Board To Settle Issue

Barring an unexpected agreement in the meantime, another battle in the case of vitrified clay pipe versus reinforced concrete pipe will take place this week.

A special meeting of the Orange county outfall sewer board has been called for Friday night in the Anaheim city hall, it was announced today by Secretary Leo Sheridan, Anaheim, when the discussion on badly needed repairs on the outfall sewer line will be continued.

The battle was precipitated recently when Councilman Joseph P. Smith of Santa Ana insisted on a 42-inch reinforced concrete pipe. Representatives of Anaheim and other cities held out for vitrified pipe.

About four miles of sewer line from the screening plant in the Santa Ana river bed to the ocean are in danger of collapse. The line is made of concrete segments plastered together. Sewer gas and acid have eaten away the plaster and there are cracks from the 1933 earthquake.

Smith says concrete pipe will cost several thousand dollars less than the glazed clay or tile pipe. Other board members feel the other kind of pipe will cost less in the long run.

U. C. L. A. WANTS FULLBACK JOHN LEHNHARDT

"We have too many jaycee backs now," answered the U. C. L. A. coaching staff when Jack Fredericks, ponderous ex-Bruin and Don guard, recommended Bill Spaulding & Co. take a look at Santa Ana's Johnny Lehnhardt. Fredericks' description of the "Don's" all-conference quarter and fullback must have impressed "Westwood" "Will" anyway, because Spaulding sent two of his right-hand men, including Mike Frankovich, here Friday night to see the Don's snatch the southland grid crown from Los Angeles, 9 to 0.

Frankovich was so impressed he wanted to "sign" Lehnhardt right on the spot, 'tis said, but it seems the versatile Garden Grove lad also is interested in Washington and Mississippi. Ole Miss probably will receive first consideration. . . . George Baker of Santa Ana, the ex-Stanford center, believes Lehnhardt could have been playing regularly at most universities this fall.

Says Fredericks, who has two years left at U. C. L. A. himself: "Lehnhardt is one of the coolest players I've ever seen. He takes his time but loses none. He calmly waits for the holes to open, and quickly dashes through them. And can he pass!" Jack, who captained the 1932 Don's, believes the '36 edition is the most potent ever developed by Bill Cook.

SELECTION OF PITTSBURGH DRAWS CRITICISM

Unpopular indeed has been Washington's selection of Pittsburgh as its Rose Bowl guest instead of Louisiana State or Alabama. Here's brief comment from a few of the nation's sport pages:

The Oakland Tribune's sports editor, Art Cohn, recently a columnist for the Long Beach Press-Telegram: "My compliments to Washington for its judicious selection of its sparring partner. When in doubt, invite Pittsburgh. Pittsburgh has never abused California hospitality by winning a game in Pasadena."

Sid Ziff in the Los Angeles Herald: "It isn't, ahem, what you might call a popular choice. It leaves you cold, doesn't it? Sort of like a wet splash in the face, in other words. How'd they ever forget about Louisiana State and Alabama? I'll bet Washington didn't want to lose."

Pat Frayne, sports editor of the San Francisco Call-Bulletin: "I suppose we will have to grin and bear it. The Rose Bowl has long since ceased to be a game between the best teams of the western and eastern halves of the country, so the selection of Pittsburgh is not out of line with what has become established custom."

Maxwell Stiles in Los Angeles Examiner: "Of all the teams ever to play at Pasadena, Pitt has consistently done the grandest of all. The Washington gentlemen don't care what anybody in Los Angeles or Pasadena thinks about it. The game belongs entirely to Washington now. As far as all of the Los Angeles scribes are concerned, Washington can have it. We don't want it."

COLEMAN USES NEW HOLDS ON KUDO TONIGHT

Sports Copy-Wrighted: Riverside J. C. invited Pittsburgh to train on the Eastern conference eleven's field for its Rose Bowl date with Washington. . . . Woodrow Wilson's Bruins are pre-season favorites to win the basketball championship of the Coast league of which Santa Ana is a member. . . . Charley Borah, former holder of the world record for the 100-yard dash, and a member of the United States Olympic team in '28, will marry an Arizona girl next spring. Borah is now a dentist in Phoenix. "Kiman Kudo wins most of his bouts because Americans try to beat the Japanese at his own game," says Bob Coleman, who wrestles the 170-pound Nippon star in the three-fall main event at the Highway 101 house of horrors tonight. "I'm going to use an unorthodox American style of football tactics, flying head scissors, flying mares and other late maneuvers unknown to Kudo." Coleman perhaps has forgotten that one of these flying tackles missed fire not so long ago and he was "out" for an hour.

STYMIED

Champ Aided By 'A Break' Opposes Rule

By CHARLES GRUMICH (First in a Series)

NEW YORK. (AP)—The stymie—an ancient barnacle on golf that the green in unexpected and spectacular consequences?

Golf's lawyers, legislators and competitors right down to the duffers playing in the club tournament's Flight C are involved in a nationwide wrangle over the problem.

The question is whether to pull away from the old rule laid down by the Royal and Ancient, whose regulations coincide with those of the U. S. Golf association except as to size of ball and the fore-and-aft Schenectady putter banned by the British; or to leave the jump-shot or "englished" run-around putt in the American game.

The perennial bone of contention was dug up when Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati, a member of the U. S. Walker Cup team, seized a break resulting from a stymie to defeat British Walker Cupper Jock McLean of Scotland in the finals of the 1936 American amateur championship at Garden City, L. I.

The stymie shot heard 'round the golf world was fired at the 34th hole. Fischer overran his first putt badly from about 35 feet and McLean was less than a yard past with his 15-footer, in position for a sure par 4. Coming back, Fischer's ball stopped wide of the cup but squarely in McLean's line, lying 4.

The Scot's niblick shot, lofted straight for the hole on the fly, was over, and they halved with 55.

Fischer practiced stymie shot

WITHOUT the stymie, McLean doubtless would have won the hole, and the match would have stood double two. Since they halved the 35th with birdie 4s, the Scot would have been U. S. amateur champion, winning by 2 and 1—figuring, of course, that he could have sunk that wee putt on which he was stymied at the 34th.

Neither McLean nor Fischer, who profited by his own miscued putt, favors the stymie. Fischer has given the matter considerable thought. "I have always considered the execution of a stymie shot the most interesting, delicate and difficult in the game, and have spent many hours of practice on it for those reasons," the amateur champion says. "To miss a stymie might necessitate the sinking of a bothersome putt of five feet or more as it did McLean in our final match at Garden City."

IT IS also almost impossible to attempt a putt outside a 10-foot radius without fear of laying yourself a stymie or possibly enabling your opponent to lay you one. The control and judgment of distance required on the fast, slippery greens we have today take the confident playing of that length putt outside the scope of ability.

"It is with this in mind rather than the playing of the stymie itself, that I favor the abolishment of the stymie."

Kudo Definitely Battles Coleman Tonight

JAPANESE ACE REPORTED IN FINE SHAPE

Appearance Forfeits Of $400 Are Posted With Promoter Sampson

Promoter Sam Sampson had $400 in appearance forfeits today as a guarantee that Kiman Kudo, Japanese champion, and Bob Coleman, claimant to the world middleweight title, will wrestle at the Orange County Athletic club tonight.

The principals each deposited $200, and the Highway 101 promoter had official confirmation Kudo is in top shape and ready for Coleman.

Classic of Season

Last week Kudo called off the match at the eleventh hour because of an injury sustained earlier the previous week, and Coleman won in straight falls from Mitsui Hamanaki, Japanese substitute.

The match with Kudo, who can beat bigger and heavier men easier than he can trim clever men of his own poundage, is expected to prove the mat classic of the season.

They clash in a best two-out-of-three falls, one-hour time limit feature, with Brother Jonathan meeting Ignacio Martinez, 220-pound Mexican, in the 45-minute one-fall semi-windup.

Martinez May Weaken

Jonathan faces a lad who has never been called upon to wrestle more than 30 minutes, and experts look for Martinez to weaken unless he succeeds in "hooking" the Utah giant early in the bout.

Plenty of wild and woolly action is looked for in the two preceding matches, which feature Steve Strehlich, the "Terrible Swede," of hunk scissors and flying tackle fame, vs. Tiny Roebuck, and Tarzan Zim vs. Bob Managoff, the mad Russian. Zim is a sure-fire performer and wants another crack at Martinez, whom he wrestled to a spectacular draw last Monday night.

Ladies will be admitted for half price to the ringside section tonight, as Promoter Sampson modifies his "Ladies' Night." The same price scale remains for other sections of the arena.

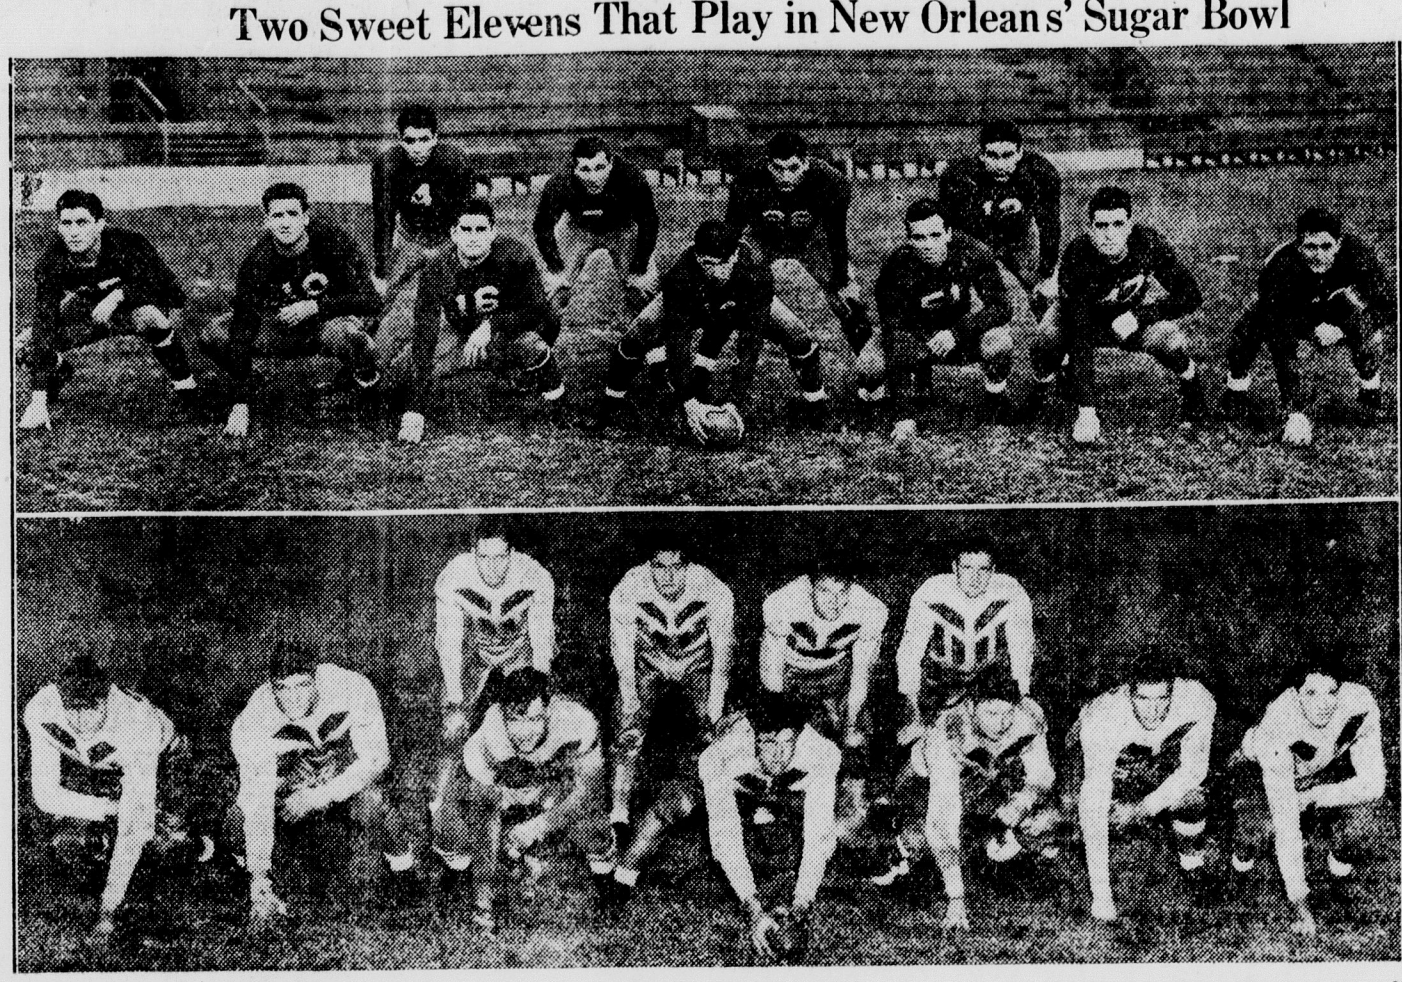

DETROIT MAKES BID FOR WHITEHEAD OF CHICAGO

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
NEW YORK. (AP)—Moving from Montreal to New York, major league baseball officials continued talking about trades today as they gathered for tomorrow's opening of the annual winter meetings.

Since their big bartering session in Canada they haven't come up with any new deals, but according to the best reports the trading this week is likely to overshadow any business transacted inside the meeting rooms.

Manager Mickey Cochrane of Detroit said he had made a cash offer for Pitcher John Whitehead of the White Sox. But Jimmy Dykes of Chicago wanted Ruby York, slated for first base duty at Detroit if Hank Greenberg goes to the outfield. They may compromise on Jack Burns instead of York.

Both Bill Terry, Giants' manager, and Owner P. K. Wrigley of the Cubs said they expect to do some trading this week, but they're at a standstill now. Wrigley gave a cool reception to Terry's offer of Hank Leiber, Gus Mancuso and Hal Schumacher for Bill Lee, Frank Demaree and Ken

Duke, Montana Record 105-Yd. Runs on Grid

By HERBERT BARKER
NEW YORK. (AP)—Credit Ace Parker, Duke's All-America halfback, and Milton Popovich of Montana with the longest of the football season's long gains.

Parker saved the best of his 1936 long runs for the objective game with North Carolina, grabbing a kickoff five yards back of his own goal and running 105 yards to a touchdown. Popovich did the same thing against Oregon State.

These were the outstanding sprints of the campaign, but an Associated Press roundup of long runs, long passes and long kicks developed scores of other sensational plays.

Byron White of Colorado university, for instance, ran 102 yards with a kickoff against Denver, and Dexter Stanhill of Seawac grabbed a Florida fumble in mid-air on his own goal line and sprinted 100 yards to score. Bud Langley of Southern California made a 100-yard run to tie Notre Dame Saturday after intercepting a pass.

A.A.U. HAS 6-PT. PROGRAM Raps Athletic Nationalism

By ALAN GOULD
HOUSTON, Texas. (AP)—Outlining a six-point program for far-reaching development of American athletics, Jeremiah Titus Mahoney of New York, newly-elected president of the Amateur Athletic union, followed up his decisive victory over the forces led by Chicago's Avery Brundage with a strong attack today upon "athletic nationalism."

"Personally, I believe we have been fooled much in believing that any great lesson can be learned from the Olympic Games," said Mahoney, who lost his battle with Brundage a year ago in an attempt to have the A. A. U. boycott the 1936 games in Berlin as an anti-Nazi protest.

"Against Nationalism"

"The moral concepts and ideals of the Olympics are splendid—if lived up to, but thus far I am fearful very little international harmony or understanding has been accomplished. I believe the Olympics should be awarded only to nations adhering to these ideals in their national or international relationships."

"I am strongly against nationalism in sport in any country. I am

Guthiers, Holmes Share Country Club Golf Honors

Best-ball partner and foursome play occupied the week-end schedule of Santa Ana Country club's golfers, with Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Guthier and C. D. Holmes and C. D. Holmes, Jr. carrying off honors.

Mr. and Mrs. Guthier won best-ball foursomes with an 88-15-73. Mrs. Paul Hall and J. K. McDonald carded an 84-9-75, and Mrs. R. W. Weston and Elmer Curry, 89-11-78.

The Holmes' father-and-son combination scored a 75-9-66. Ross Hostetter and E. Steffenson carded a 76-10-66, and J. K. McDonald and L. D. Coffing a 74-6-68 in best-ball partner play.

SAINTS, DONS OPEN COURT SCHEDULES

Basketball swings into the sports picture at Santa Ana High school and Junior college this week.

Capt. Sam Lockhart's Saint preps, coached by Reece (Pinky) Greene, were slated to play San Bernardino's Cards of the Citrus Belt league in Andrews gymnasium at 3:15 p. m. today.

Coach Blanchard Beatty's Santa Ana Dons, strengthened by championship football talent—Bob Faul, Erwin Yonel, Bill Greshner and Dick Tauber, among others—will play an exhibition with Long Beach Vikings of the Western J. C. conference in Andrews gymnasium Wednesday night.

League schedules open in early January.

Ken Nissley, Harry Stanley, John Jennison, Clarence (Tay) Riggs and Bob Browning are among the hold-overs who will form the nucleus for the junior college machine.

Capt. Lockhart, guard; Bill Milligan, Larry Tway, Milton Smith and Bill Musick are among the outstanding prep candidates. The Saints play Leuzinger of Inglewood here Friday.

G. A. (Tex) Oliver Attends Coast Conference Meet

PASADENA. (AP)—The annual winter meeting of the Pacific coast conference got underway here today with athletic heads of the various schools here to act on numerous routine affairs.

Professor Hugh C. Willett, president of Southern California, president of the conference, assumed charge of the session, which will come to an end tomorrow.

Prospects of a spirited meeting waned when members said little business of outstanding nature would be handled, and that one of the most important matters, mapping out the 1937 football schedule, would probably be postponed until the spring meeting.

Track schedules and a location and date for the conference track and field meet were slated to be decided upon, however, and officers will be elected for the coming year.

G. A. (Tex) Oliver, University of Arizona coach who developed Santa Ana High school's "wonder" eleven of 1931 and '32, is among the delegates at Pasadena.

LINEMEN AND BACKS BOTH PLENTIFUL

Mercurio, Mueller, Faul, Roquet, Stanley, Beall And Crawford Return

By PAUL WRIGHT
The famine usually follows the feast in this blessed madness called football, but a check-up today reveals Santa Ana's Dons will be no doormat. They retain sufficient material which, augmented by incoming preps, might even install them as favorites in the '37 race.

The Dons retain a complete backfield combination that compares favorably with everything the conference produced this fall, except of course, Santa Ana's No. 1 unit built around the all-conference greats, John Lehnhardt and Bill Greshner.

This backfield alignment will include long-legged Blas Mercurio at quarterback, Charley Mueller at inside half, Ed Stanley at right half and the exceptionally smart Mac Beall at fullback. Mueller and Stanley are two of the most underrated players on the Don roster. Both are strong blockers who have paved the way for Greshner's brilliant gains. Mercurio should be a riot next fall. He can punt 60 and 65 yards, and knows how to skirt the ends.

Man power galore is stored up in Santa Ana's freshman forwards, all of whom plan to return for the '37 schedule. They are Erwin Yonel, sticky-fingered right end who was one of the best wingmen in the conference this season; Bill Semmacher, a strong defensive end; Russell (Rusty) Roquet, 210-pound red-headed regular who kicked off for the Dons, and was a stone-wall on defense; Bob Faul, all-county league tackle for Orange who also is a sweet guard in basketball; Joe Crawford, steady 195-pounder who played lots of ball at guard; Danny Boyd, the dynamic 165-pound center from Oceanside High.

Dick Tauber, the Wichita giant who was made over from an end to a tackle, will be on hand again. Tauber should develop into a regular. Other hold-overs will be Carl Lehnhardt, brother of all-conference Johnny, and Walter Opp, halfbacks; Minoru Nitta, fullback; Gordon West, center, and Jim Burkhardt, guard.

The Dons will be honored at a chamber of commerce banquet at Legion hall Dec. 15.

WOOLEN MILLS PLAYS R.J.C.

Postponing Saturday night's engagement at an eleven-hour request of the Los Angeles Olympic clubmen, Manager Quentin Matzen's Woollen Mills' cagers of Santa Ana have begun preparations for a game with Riverside Junior college on the latter's floor Wednesday night.

Friday the Matzen men are host to the Breakers' Valet Service quintet from Long Beach on the Y. M. C. A. floor at 8 p. m.

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—The "king" of Santa Anita, Top Row, was back in his throne stall at Santa Anita race track today.

A. A. Baroni's mighty little son of Peanuts, winner of the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap last February, came prancing off a railway gangplank yesterday, ending a trip from Texas.

Top Row hasn't raced since the Tanforan meeting last spring, but is in good shape and will be groomed to go after the big money purse in the coming handicap. He has been in training in Texas for several months.

Germany's oil fields now employ about 4600 men.

Here and There With The Journal's

ADVICE for chilluns, so they won't grow up to be bald-headed or poets, and the story about the mean old lady who "et her own cat" are highlights of Editor Verner Beck's latest "Sermon for Chillun" in the most recent issue of the Coastline Dispatch.

With an apology to Editor Beck and an absolute guarantee to the reader that he'll get at least 15 hysterical giggles from the sermon, I'm swiping—again—his weekly offering to youngsters of San Juan Capistrano.

Here's the sermon:

"Little Chilluns, when you are little chilluns always be kind and true to the old folks, especial to old ladies, and don't ever try to play any tricks on them because if you do things will come to haunt you when you sleep, and you will some day grow up to be bald-headed or poets. If you can find a dictionary you will see it in a word that is called Retribution, and that is what will happen to you if you think you are smart. Your mama wouldn't want retribution to happen to you, because she loves you, even if your teacher doesn't. Once upon a time there lived a lady in a neighborhood who wouldn't get married. That's what she thought about little boys and men, and anyway nobody ever asked her, so she did the next best thing and had as her only pet a big tom-cat. She would throw rocks at the little boys in the neighborhood but never hit even one. She even got to disliking them so much she made the gas company and the plumbing shop and the ice company send women to her house with gas and plumbing and ice. But my, how she did love her tom-cat, which she called Lancelot. The little boys would tease her and Lancelot, until one day she managed to scold the hose on one little boy, and he went home without even making a face at her or calling her a name, and the old manie thought she had licked him. It looked like it too, Chilluns, because Thanksgiving was coming, and he never bothered her, and he wouldn't let anybody else tease her either. Then the day before Thanksgiving he walked up on her porch with a bundle under his arm and said his papa had been out hunting rabbits, and would she care for a nice bunny for Thanksgiving, because his papa had skinned it and everything just for her. My but the old girl was happy, Chilluns, and she took the bundle and patted the boy and tried the rabbit on Thanksgiving and had another old manie woman in for company, because she knew she could not eat it all alone. A couple of days after Thanksgiving she tried to find Lancelot, but couldn't, and when she was walking around the house calling her Lancelot, here Lancelot, some of the boys stood on the sidewalk, and began to chirp, 'you Lancelot, you Lancelot.' And that's just what she did, Chilluns. Those mean little boys didn't give her a skinned bunny at all. They gave her Lancelot. And ever after whenever she saw a kitty she got sick to the stomach, and finally she moved away to Little America where cats don't grow, and there she lived on penguins and awks. And here is where Retribution happened. When the little boy grew up he got ulcers of the stomach and the quinzies, and his wife ran away with a man who owned a cat hospital and sold sealskin coats made of rabbit. It looked like it all right, but that little boy who had told his Mama what he had done with Lancelot he probably would have grown up to be a very respected chiropractor. So promise your mamas, Little Chilluns, that you will never try to turn a tom-cat into a rabbit, won't you, please, especial at Thanksgiving when folks eat everything they can grab."

garding the proverb, one can't help but jump to the conclusion that they were expensive tickets! "The other fellow does your thinking when you play his game" is the proverb. Good'n, huh?

But the story behind the saying is that 32 years ago, in a tiny mining camp, Speer stopped to watch a man operate some sort of gambling device. Several spectators won money, and so finally he "invested" his paycheck—$95—and dropped the whole works!—immediately afterward, he wrote the proverb.

So really, the tickets cost $47 each!

Marion Speer, expert on western history, presented a proverb to The Journal, which was accepted and printed. This entitled him to a pair of free theater tickets.

FULLERTON VOTERS DECIDE FATE OF CITY HALL TUESDAY

BALLOT WILL BE HEAVY, IS BELIEF

Six Precincts Named By Officials; Climaxes Bitter Battle

FULLERTON.—This community's long-drawn battle over a proposed city hall building will be settled at the polls tomorrow.

In six consolidated precincts, residents will ballot upon an ordinance which would keep all civic buildings from Commonwealth park, proposed site for the $40,000 city hall favored by three members of the city council.

Officials have pointed out that a "yes" vote will prohibit construction of the new building on the park site. Residents voting "no" favor placing the structure on the Commonwealth avenue property.

Tomorrow's vote will climax a fight of several months over locations of the civic building. First planned for a site on West Whittling avenue, three members of the council later voted to switch the site to the park land at Highland and Commonwealth avenues, directly in front of the community hall park.

Lawsuits and much individual activity followed action of the council, and for the past week a personal canvass of the community has been made by representatives of both sides. A large vote is anticipated.

Fullerton's 24 voting precincts have been consolidated as follows for tomorrow's vote: Precinct A, Keith garage, 502 West Commonwealth avenue; B, kitchen of Ford avenue school, West Chapman avenue; C, fire hall, 123 West Whittling avenue; D, garage, 115 North Harvard avenue; E, garage building, 703 East Commonwealth avenue, and F, room 21, science building, Fullerton Union High school.

TREE 'MEOWS' LIKE CAT

Mystery Stumps Laguna Cop

LAGUNA BEACH.—Residents of Laguna Beach, daily becoming more accustomed to odd things, today had solved the mystery of the tree that meows like a cat, but it took the police department to convince the citizens that the affair really is settled.

For two days Lagunatics who lived on Linden street had heard the plaintive cries of a cat. The source of the heart-broken wails was discovered to be a 30-foot tree in the yard of Norton Brayton, 484 Linden street. Because of the height of the tree, no ordinary citizen would attempt to rescue the feline which was believed to be marooned in the lofty tree.

So officer Jack Blakely rushed to the scene on request of the perturbed neighbors. He found a tall ladder, and with determination to save the cat or die in the attempt, he mounted the swaying ladder. He searched for a long time, but could not find the pussy, although he could hear the meows, apparently very close at hand.

Finally the officer figured it out. If there was no cat, there could be no meows. So he launched his investigation into another phase. He had to satisfy the neighbors, so he had to find the elusive meows. What he finally discovered was that a tree branch rubbing gently on the shingle of the roof, made noises which were more like a cat's meow than a cat could make.

He had some difficulty convincing the neighbors that the piece of rib-bone placed between the limb and the shingles stopped the alleged cat-calls, they just had to believe!

CROCKERY GIRL

By LEWIS ALLEN BROWNE

Susan Morrison works for John Sithwick, New York crockery dealer. Chester Bosdick, young traveling salesman for the concern, wants her to marry him, but he makes barely enough to support himself. Sithwick, who poses to her, and becomes insistent that she inherits the estate of a great-uncle. But she goes alone to the small town where her uncle made his home. She finds her inheritance a worthless swamp, acquired by her uncle in exchange for his valuable farm just before he died. Chester turns up and tries to trick Bosdick into trading the farm back for the swamp by spreading the rumor that the swamp contains valuable crockery. Bosdick, hearing this from his snoopish nephew, Bert, offers Susan one hundred dollars for the swamp.

Susan strove to mask her inward elation. She looked at Eben Bosdick suspiciously. "What do you want to do with that swamp?" "Why should you offer me a hundred dollars for property so worthless that you were glad to palm it off on my poor old uncle?" she asked coldly.

"Now, look here, Miss, you've heard a lot of lousy gossip talk. You uncle wanted that swamp land to exchange it for his worthless little old farm. But I hate to see you have to pay out a hundred a year taxes on that land."

"That is surprisingly generous, Mr. Bosdick, but my swamp land is not for sale."

"Girls don't know about such things," he said. "I'm making you a good offer."

"Maybe so," said Susan, "but my swamp land is not for sale."

"You're being very foolish," Eben snapped angrily, and stalked out of the hotel.

Susan wired to Chet, informing him of the offer.

"Hooked. Keep it up," was the reply he wired back.

Two days later, Bosdick dropped into the hotel to that swamp land. Sheriff Johnson and Doc Waldo were in the lobby playing checkers. Bosdick told Susan that he had been thinking things over and could offer her two hundred for the swamp.

Susan raised her voice so that the sheriff and Doc could hear.

"Look here, Mr. Bosdick," she said, "I'm an honest girl. I know that that swamp land is absolutely worthless. That's why I couldn't possibly accept the two hundred you offer me!"

Doc Waldo and the sheriff forgot their game and stared at Susan and Bosdick.

"Hush—hush—never discuss private business out loud," Bosdick warned, in a low voice.

"There's nothing private about it, Mr. Bosdick," Susan said louder than ever. "That swamp isn't worth ten cents an acre, and anyone who pays me eleven cents an acre for it is created. The swamp is not for sale. Is that plain enough?"

"Think it over. You'll change your mind," Bosdick said, and went out hastily.

Sheriff Johnson and Doc Waldo came over to Susan at once.

"I've heard rumors about that bein' valuable pottery clay, Miss Morrison," the sheriff said. "If old Bosdick offers you two hundred for the swamp, it's worth at least two thousand."

"Thanks—but I think you're mistaken. I told Mr. Bosdick what I believe to be the truth—that the land is worthless. If he insists on paying a lot for it, no one can say that I cheated him."

"Heh—heh! Nobody's ever goin' to cheat old Bosdick," Doc Waldo chuckled.

Meanwhile, Chet had finished his trip and had arrived back in New York. He decided he wouldn't give Sithwick the satisfaction of knowing that Susan had inherited only a worthless swamp.

Arriving at the office, he brought in the six boxes of clay that he had carried with him, and stuck them in a corner.

"I saw Miss Morrison, boss," he said, "and what do you think? There's a possibility she may be rich."

"What's that?" Sithwick growled.

"She owns a thousand acres of swamp that may contain some very fine pottery clay. I've sent out samples to be analyzed."

He showed the remaining samples to Sithwick, who knew all about finished crockery, but nothing about the raw materials. He examined the clay with awe.

"Miss Morrison deserves a break," said Chet, "and if that clay proves to be fine crockery clay, her land should be worth a fortune."

"Well, maybe," said Sithwick. "But chances are it isn't worth a cent. You keep your mind on Sithwick Crockery, Hadley."

"Sure, sure!"

Chet knew, however, that Sithwick was considerably impressed. He never guessed, though, that when he had left, Sithwick opened a box of the clay again and examined it, smelled it, rubbed it between his fingers. As he did so, he was muttering, "A thousand acres—and I let it slip through my fingers!"

ONE PROBLEM FACES FARM AND LABOR

State Bureau Leader Says
Distribution System
Is Needed

PASADENA. (AP)—Agriculture and labor have a common stake in solving problems of distribution as a paramount security of the nation. President R. W. Blackburn of the California Farm Bureau Federation told its 15th annual convention today.

The wider the gap between production and consumption, he said, the greater the penalties placed upon both agriculture and labor.

"This gap must be closed up," Blackburn declared. "Upon the elimination of distributive tolls between production and consumption depends more than mere financial enhancement of agriculture and labor. The very safety, sanity and security of the nation are involved."

Addresses Joint Meet

Blackburn addressed a joint session of the California Federation and the Associated Women of the American Farm Bureau Federation. The 18th annual meeting of the national organization proper opens Wednesday.

The three-day state meeting started last night and the women's convention opened today for two days.

In a plea to farmers to organize under the farm bureau banner, Blackburn declared economic disparities growing out of inequalities in distribution of national income have stimulated sharply the advantages of collective bargaining for economic groups. At the same time, he said, hostility between industry and labor as evidenced by numerous strikes, particularly in the past year, is not only imperiling national security but penalizing agriculture.

"Often damaged irreparably by this struggle for a division of national income and national wealth, is an innocent group, agriculture," he said.

Distribution Problem

The problem of distribution, however, Blackburn asserted, must be solved in the interest of those who contribute most to production.

He asked why distribution should be permitted to levy "unreasonable tolls" against both production and consumption.

"The farm bureau is pledged to execution of a program by which all unproductive processes affecting agriculture shall be eliminated," Blackburn said. "It matters not in what form these unproductive tolls appear. So long as they are unproductive, they possess no economic value."

"Those who have taken indiscriminately from agriculture must now give back to agriculture."

Reasons for Migration

Abandoned farms, unsocial environments, stagnated communities and migration of rural youth to cities, are traceable directly to an impoverished agriculture, the speaker said.

"I am not worried about what a prosperous agriculture may fail to do for itself, its communities, its nation," said Blackburn, "but I am worried about what an impoverished agriculture is not able to do for its men and women and its youth."

"I am fearful of the inevitable results that follow in the wake of an impoverished agriculture."

Demands Larger Income

Blackburn declared American agriculture has a larger share of the national income and wealth to build a fuller rural life.

"From the day of its birth," he said, "our organization has proclaimed to the world the right of rural people to use the power of organization in building a better and richer civilization with lasting benefits not only to agriculture but to all parts of our country."

"I visualize such a civilization as one which permits fullest expansion of economic opportunity for all; a civilization which recognizes that economic disparity between essential groups must be completely and permanently eliminated; a civilization dedicated to the elimination of all economic waste."

Townsend
News, Views

By WALTER R. ROBB

(This is a non-political, non-partisan column, dealing in Townsend news and views, and written by a prominent Townsend leader. Any opinions which are expressed herein are not necessarily those of The Journal.)

Townsendites of California will be happy when they learn that Edward J. Margett goes to Chicago after all, as the big gun of the national movement. Just what his title will be has not been determined, but his authority will be complete or as near so as is needed. For several days he wavered between the calls of his own business interests and the insistence of Dr. Townsend that he go to Chicago. Last Friday the decision was definitely made.

The writer recorded in this column a few days ago his belief that with Margett in charge in Chicago, the Townsendites would have real assurance that "exorbitant salaries and unjust commissions would not be paid officials or employees of the Townsend movement." Now there will be opportunity for Margett to demonstrate that the confidence which the California Townsend followers have in him has not been misplaced. He did some needed trimming of salaries in the Los Angeles headquarters and eliminated unnecessary officials, with a consequent reduced expense to the Townsend movement.

Captain Delbert Brunton is the new California state manager. The Orange county Townsendites will be happy to learn that Captain Brunton is a former Orange county resident. From 1905 to 1906 he was vice-principal of the Orange High school. From 1906 to 1916 he was principal of the Fullerton High school. He then served another year in the Orange school. He then enlisted in the World war and returned at the end of the war with the rank of captain. He reentered the teaching profession, being elected as principal of the Fresno school, where he served five years. From there he went to the Mountain View schools near San Francisco, where he remained until last summer.

He was discharged from the Mountain View schools because he wouldn't desist from active support of the Townsend movement. After his loss of his school position he became eastern regional director of the Townsend movement. Later he took over the management of the Townsend work for the state of Massachusetts, where he continued until the recent election. Now he becomes our California state manager and we Orange county Townsendites will consider him as one of the home folks.

Captain Brunton will be in Santa Ana tomorrow night at 7:30 as the speaker in a county wide mass meeting being held in Townsend hall at 509 West Fourth street. So you folk of this county will be among the first to get acquainted with your new state manager. Let's welcome this former resident of our county in a big way as the Townsend state manager. He's a likeable fellow. The writer met him yesterday in Los Angeles and heard him deliver a wonderful address. He's a fine speaker and knows economics, having taught the subject in the schools. He is a cultured gentleman but nevertheless is a man of the people. Like Dr. Townsend, he is fired with a determination to fight on for the Townsend plan until it is the law of the land. Come out tomorrow night and see and hear him for yourself.

Edward F. Trefz, who is internationally known, has been recently appointed a member of the Townsend national directors. The announcement was made last Friday by Dr. Townsend in the Biltmore theater open house meeting. Trefz was national secretary of United States Chamber of Commerce over a five year period. He was a member of the overseas commission of the United States Food administration during the World war, under appointment by President Woodrow Wilson. He was also envoy extraordinary of the President to the Dominion of Canada. He has been actively engaged as a Townsend lecturer over a long period, having spoken a number of times in Orange county. He was the chief speaker at the Townsend mass meeting held in the Santa Ana municipal bowl last summer. His appointment as a national director will be approved the nation over by the Townsendites.

Dr. Francis E. Townsend will be on the air again at 8:45 o'clock tonight over KNX with a special message. Last Friday noon he spoke before the Biltmore theater open house audience. He came to the Pacific coast expecting to stay until Christmas, but the indictment on two counts by the federal grand jury for contempt of the house of representatives may make his return East earlier than intended. In his address Friday noon the doctor signified his intention of personally presenting petitions to President Roosevelt, asking for the enactment of the Townsend plan into law in the near future.

of Rialto for 30 years, was a prominent citrus grower and also prominent in church work. Besides his widow and the Santa Ana son, he leaves a daughter, Mary Catherine Gillette, now in the Philippines.

Egypt is trying to find the best bee for its beeswax industry.

He commented on the possibility of his being convicted of the contempt charges but stated he would go to jail before he would pay one cent of a fine. It was in this meeting that the first announcement of the appointment of the new state manager was made.

Also that of Margett going to Chicago.

The Ocean View Townsend club will meet at 6:30 tomorrow evening in the Oceanview school to enjoy a pot-luck dinner. All members will please bring a covered dish and their own table service.

The program arrangements have been made by B. P. Ralston, former president of the club. After the dinner at 7:30 a regular club meeting will be held in the school auditorium. W. T. Vandruft, president, will preside. L. C. Carlisle of Santa Ana will be present as the speaker of the evening.

The Buena Park Townsend club will meet at 6:30 tomorrow evening in the social hall of the Congregational church to enjoy a pot-luck dinner. Sam Craig, president, urges all the club members to be present with plenty of food. At 7:30 the regular business session will be held with the writer of this column as the speaker.

President H. J. Sherman announces that La Habra club No. 1 will meet at 7:30 tonight in the Masonic hall. A. E. Shearer is vice president of this organization. The ladies of the club held a two day bazaar in the building adjoining the bank on West Central street, last Friday and Saturday. Mrs. Ed Jernigan was in charge of arrangements.

SYMPHONY TO MAKE DEBUT TOMORROW

Santa Ana Musicians To Be Heard in Concert At High School

First presentation of "Fantasy for Piano and Strings," Earl Fraser's modern concerto, with a full symphony orchestra, will be made tomorrow night at the Santa Ana High school auditorium, when the Santa Ana symphony opens its current season.

Fraser, guest artist for the program, will play his composition on the first half of the program, supported by the 90-piece orchestra. His work is referred to as "refreshingly modern and distinctly original."

Bear to Conduct

Other compositions to be performed will be varied from the strictly symphonic to light ballet music. Conductor Elwood Bear will open the program with Mendelssohn's overture to "Fingal's Cave," inspired by a visit made by the composer to a curious cave on Staffa Island, near the coast of Scotland. The music is a tone poem, picturing the restless waves of the sea beating ceaselessly against the rugged Scottish coast.

Next comes the immortal Tchaikowsky "Fifth Symphony." This, of all Tchaikowsky's works, is unique in its contrasts, beginning with a mod introduction, and proceeding through the lyric beauty of the second movement to a gay concert waltz in the third movement, and a majestic conclusion in its fourth and final movement.

Increased Personnel

The program's second half will include three piano compositions and incidental music from two suites. The first is the beautiful Adagio, from Bizet's first "L'Arlesienne Suite," and in conclusion is the Pizzicati and "Corde de Bacchus," by Delibes, famed French ballet composer of the late nineteenth century.

For the first time under its present management the symphony will make a slight admission charge. Its increased personnel and more ambitious program for the year have made this necessary.

Adult season tickets are on sale at the Santa Ana Book store, while general admission tickets may be secured at the box office. The program will open at 8 p. m.

TUSTIN P-T. A.

Tustin Grammar school P-T. A. will meet at 2:30 p. m. Thursday in the kindergarten room of the school for a Christmas program centering about the theme, "Know Your Children's Books." Sixth grade mothers will be hostesses. Executive board will meet at 1 o'clock, preceding the general session.

Santa and the Viking

BY SIGRID ARNE

The North Wind blew on the crimson sails.

Chapter One

The North Wind Many, many years ago on a stormy December afternoon the North Wind was strolling up and down the sky near the North Pole talking to himself, "Who-oosh, who-oosh!"

His shaggy, gray hair and his long tail streamed behind him as he pushed along trying to think of some prank to play. He had been down to our world to puff snow up on our porches. He had stuck his chilly finger down our collars. Now he was bored.

Suddenly he stopped in his tracks. "Way below him in the Arctic Sea he saw a strange sight. Along a jagged lane of water, left by the cracking ice, there was a huge ship with crimson sails. From the ship's sides, dozens of shining oars were pulling it through the water. But there was no one on the ship except a stern-looking man who stood high in the carved prow. His long, yellow hair waved in the breeze. He wore a shining silver helmet and breast-plate, and his legs were bound with white wolens and laced with thin, red-leather thongs.

He blew on the sails. "Who-o!" shouted the North Wind as he dipped down from the sky and blew on the crimson sails. "I'll push him along to Santa's toyshop. He looks lonesome and Santa has had no visitor for years."

In a short time the ship bumped shore near Toyland and stopped. The strange man in the prow looked about him sorrowfully, but he made no move.

"Now for some fun," whistled the North Wind. He rushed to Santa's toyshop and puffed huge clouds of snow against the windows. In a second Santa's ruddy face appeared. He threw up the window sash and shouted, "What's up?" Fairies hovered over his thick, white hair, and a jumping-jack in his hand squeaked, "Go way, go way!"

"Who Can He Be?" But Santa saw the ship across the snow. "Well, I never!" he exclaimed, tugging his beard. "And

STOCK MEN OF COUNTY ASK BENEFITS

List 56,730 Acres of Private Range Land in Program

Stock men of Orange county have listed 56,730 acres of privately owned range land for Agricultural Conservation administration benefits based on improvement work to be done by Jan. 1, W. M. Cory, assistant farm advisor, reported today.

Payments, which range up to a maximum of $2 per animal-carrying capacity of the land, are based on development of water, terracing and fencing which improve the grazing capacity.

Most of the improvement work contemplated here is in developing wells, spring and other water supplies. Cory pointed out that if water is far from the feed, cattle wear off fat in traveling back and forth, or remain near the water and do not feed heavily.

LACKLANDS TO BUILD HOME

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Lackland today were congratulating the couple on the attractiveness of plans for the new home which the Lacklands will construct at 1501 North Bristol street.

Lackland, manager of the Orange County market on South Main street, and Mrs. Lackland, Southern Counties Gas company domestic science expert, have been working on the plans for the $7000 home for several months. V. J. Anderson, contractor, will build the house.

The home will contain seven rooms and will have plank flooring. A feature of the house, of rambling type with a central French provincial living room, is the 12-foot brick fireplace with ovens which can be used inside the living room and outside in the attractive patio.

CARLSON ENDS WORLD TOUR

Tag O. Carlson had concluded his world tour today, having returned to Orange county after about a year spent in various parts of the world. On the way to Stockholm, Sweden, to visit relatives, he visited numerous oriental ports, Borneo, Java, India and points in Africa.

He returned on a Swedish freighter, the type of ship he chose on various stages of his journey because it made it easier to reach points not touched by ocean liners.

He now is a guest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Hermon on Newport road. He obtained a year's leave from his position as teller at the Security National bank to make the trip.

JONES SUES FOR REFUND

Cop Is Witness as Car Hits Sign

Moral for drivers: When striking a pedestrian sign with your car, look behind to see if there's a cop handy.

Frank Baron, 1009 Oak street, banged into one of the "stop when pedestrian in crossing" signs at McFadden and Main streets this morning. He had the misfortune, however, to be just one car ahead of Motor Sergeant B. A. Hershey, to whom those signs are very precious.

Hershey reported, however, that Baron was a newcomer to the city and hadn't been driving recklessly. He didn't cite the driver, but promised to send him a bill for fixing the sign.

Rifles Fired Into Boy Scout Camp

Five boys who assertedly fired rifles into the middle of two Boy Scout camps last Wednesday had been questioned by police today, with the possibility they may be prosecuted.

G. W. Bassett, jr., Scoutmaster in charge of one of the troops, reported the incident to police, saying the bullets struck a flag in one camp and endangered the lives of the Scouts. He said he would talk to the Scouts of the Scouts and might sign complaints against the five offenders, whose ages ranged from 12 to 18 years.

BIRTHDAY BALL WILL BE ELABORATE AFFAIR

Plans for the most elaborate President's Birthday ball ever sponsored here were under way today after Postmaster Frank R. Harwood accepted chairmanship of the committee for the third annual ball. The event will be Jan. 30.

Harwood was offered the chairmanship Friday in a telegram from Harry L. Doherty, national chairman.

As in previous years, 70 per cent of the proceeds will be used locally to aid in treating victims of infantile paralysis, and 30 per cent will go to the Warm Springs Foundation, Warm Springs, Ga., the infantile paralysis institute sponsored by President Roosevelt. Harwood said he will call to-

EXTEND TIME ON PENSION ACCOUNTS

10 Days Additional Is Given Workers On Applications

Workers today were granted an additional 10 days in which to file applications for social security accounts at the postoffice.

Finding the registrations, which were to have closed at midnight Saturday, far behind schedule, the government granted the extension. The social security board said there were so many inquiries for interpretations of the act that it granted extra time in which to prepare answers.

Postoffice Busy Place Santa Ana postoffice was the busiest place in town today as the cards, issued two weeks ago to employees in the city, continued to pour in by thousands. Approximately 10,000 cards have been issued here.

A clerk and four typists worked at top speed preparing identification cards, which are being sent out to employees here, bearing their account numbers.

Liability for Failure

Under the law, both taxpaying employers and employees are liable to fines and jail sentences if they fail to submit data required, but there has been no indication of prosecution.

The social security board expressed appreciation for the "cooperation evident throughout the country on the part of employers and employees."

The latter were reminded that application forms may be obtained from the employers or from the postoffice.

State Now Has 20 Soil Projects

El Toro and La Habra soil conservation demonstration projects in Orange county are two of 20 such projects now in operation in 10 counties of California, according to a report issued today at Santa Paula, regional Soil Conservation service headquarters.

Farmers on the projects cooperate with the federal government, furnishing materials for dams in gully control, and the use of tractors in terracing land.

Tours are held in cooperation with farm advisors to acquaint farmers outside the project areas with the latest methods of preventing soil from being washed away. Assistance from S. C. S. may be had on application to the county farm advisor.

Recreation Work Starts Dec. 11

Fred P. Jayne, supervisor of professional and technical WPA projects for Orange county, Saturday interviewed scores of playground supervisors and handcraft experts in preparation for resumption of the county recreation project.

After a conference Friday with George White, district director, Jayne said Dec. 11 is the tentative starting date, pending final directions from San Francisco. Previously there was indication the work would get under way by Tuesday.

PCA Will Elect Officers Jan. 16

John W. Crill, president of the association, and W. D. Miller, secretary-treasurer, have been named a committee to make arrangements.

Quits His Job As Escort For Green Dynamite

Officer Ed Wuerz of the Fullerton police department today knew the full meaning of the saying,

OKEH BUILDING CHIEF TONIGHT

Appointment of Harold O. Rasmussen as Santa Ana city building inspector will be made official tonight when the council meets in regular session at the city hall.

Rasmussen was appointed a week ago at an informal session of the council at which Sam Preble, former building inspector, resigned in order to become superintendent of construction for Roy Russell.

It is expected that Rasmussen's salary and transportation allowances will be decided tonight.

The planning commission is expected to report to the council on a request of North Broadway residents for rezoning of that street for apartments and offices from Seventeenth to Nineteenth streets.

Owners of all lots except two already in use for service stations signed petitions requesting the change.

"Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise," and he knows it for a truism.

It seems that Officer Wuerz was detailed to dispose of some 40 sticks of dynamite which Alexander Anderson, Fullerton geologist, didn't want around. Anderson knew the dynamite was old, and therefore dangerous. He assumed the police knew this, but they didn't.

The police found an outlet for the dynamite in the person of Bruce Moore, who agreed to accept it. Wuerz drove down to Anderson's place and loaded the box of dynamite in his car. Humming gayly, he drove back downtown, narrowly escaping bumping into several cars. He opened the car door to allow Moore to inspect the explosive.

Moore glanced but once at the dynamite, then moved backward with considerable haste.

"That stuff is green!" he whispered hoarsely. "Get it away from here!"

When Officer Wuerz took up his journey again, it was not with a sense of peace and security. He rolled up carefully before the police station, and gingerly stepped from the car. He tiptoed into the station and spoke to Sergeant Gregory, wiping his brow.

"Here's the dynamite," he said.

SHIP STRIKE IS SAID TO BE CAUSE

Shipments From North Flood Market and Quotations Drop

Orange county poultrymen today were battling with a price situation which, if it continues, will spell ruin for those without capital to hang on. The wholesale price of eggs has dropped from eight to 10 cents per dozen in approximately two weeks, at a time when poultrymen usually anticipate steady prices.

The only explanation available is that the slump has resulted from the shipping strike. When the strike started, it was explained by Assistant Farm Advisor W. M. Cory, eggs on ships destined for this section were held up. The price rose to a point where it was profitable for northern producers to send supplies here by rail.

Supplies came in such quantities that they broke the market. The local producers are thus taking it on the chin.

There is no prorate on eggs to control the market. There also are fewer eggs in cold storage than at this time last year, Cory said.

About two weeks ago the price was 41 cents per dozen. Yesterday's quotations were 33 cents for large extras, 30 cents for medium extras and 27 1/2 for small extras.

Cory said producers could stick it out temporarily but that if the low prices continued many poultrymen would be affected adversely.

Studies made at the farm advisor's office show that during the year 1935 the average cost of production was 28.2 cents per dozen. The range was from 25.7 to 30 cents.

These figures, however, were based on the 1935 feed prices. The 1936 feed prices are one and one half times as high as those in 1935. Feed constitutes 70 per cent of the total cost of production.

"Let somebody else get rid of it. I want a rest!"

Later on the dynamite was not on the scene.

TWO CLASSES IN YULE BANQUET AND PROGRAM

Eighty-three members of the Mary and Martha and the Men's Bible classes of the Calvary church partook of turkey at a delightful dinner and Christmas program, Friday evening at the Rossmore cafe.

Curtis Burrow presided as toastmaster of the evening, calling on various members for toasts after a period of Christmas carols led by Hugh Osborn. Those responding with short talks were Bill Jones, Mrs. A. P. Koentopp, Harold Bracewell, Myrtle Hines, Irene Hunter and Earl Wyman.

Musical numbers followed, Mrs. James Pedersen singing solos with accompaniment by Mrs. Earl Wyman; and Mrs. Arno Finster and Mrs. Wyman sang duets, with Mrs. Frank Lindgren accompanying.

The Yule atmosphere was created not only by the flowers and red candles used on the table, but also by clever little candy Christmas candle favors which marked the places of the guests.

Responsible in a great part for the successful event were Mr. and Mrs. Wyman, who acted as chairmen for the evening, and the members of their committee, who were Mr. and Mrs. J. Pederson, Mr. and Mrs. George Lackey, Mr. and Mrs. Errol Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Leonard, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bracewell, and Mrs. Charles Smith and Dr. and Mrs. A. P. Koentopp.

GOLDEN STATE CLUB LUNCHEONS

The Golden State luncheon club had a pleasant meeting Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Neva Weekly, 1253 West Fourth street. Mrs. Weekly was assisted in her hostess duties by Mrs. Margie Boyd, Mrs. Maxie Wilson, Mrs. Viola Underwood and Mrs. Geneva Welch.

Luncheon tables had been gaily decorated with the red poinsettias which were placed at intervals throughout the living-room, and which provided a holiday atmosphere for the Christmas gift exchange which followed the covered-dish meal. Mrs. Anna Trueblood won the door prize, and Mrs. Hart Pennington won a special hostess prize.

A business meeting resulted in the decision that the next regular meeting on the first Friday of January would be postponed to Jan. 8 because of New Year's day. It will be held at the home of Mrs. V. J. Anderson, 930 South Broadway.

Plans are rapidly being completed for the benefit card party to be given Dec. 23 at the Knights of Columbus by the entire R. N. A. organization. This will be a benefit for Miss Margie Chapman, who was recently severely and permanently injured.

Two One-Act Plays Are Planned

"Let's Produce a Play" is the title of the play written by one of Franklin school's teachers for production on Friday evening by the Parent-Teacher association of the school.

Under the able direction of Miss Arnold, this play and one by the fifth graders of the school will be presented on the same program, each with a well-selected and excellently directed cast.

Miss Arnold's play is a farce telling the trials of a professional producer who has been hired to come to a small-town P. T. A. to direct a benefit play. Her temperament is strained to the breaking point in the course of the rehearsal.

Mrs. N. E. Wilson will be seen as Volga Vane. Mrs. Myrtle Stinson plays the role of heroine, amid many tears, etc., under the heavy hand of the villain, played by Mrs. Elmer Bogart, while Mrs. T. Crossley weeps as the discarded crossdresser.

Mrs. Earl Loving is Clark Gable's only rival as the hero. Mrs. Brown Seminoe takes the part of the mother of the heroine. Mrs. Ralph Ashby as Mrs. Dyke supports the rest of the cast.

Between the plays, the harmonica band will be heard in several numbers.

The children's play is a modern Santa Claus story.

Tickets may be purchased from the school children, and all are invited to participate in an enjoyable evening.

W. C. T. U. TO MEET IN TUSTIN

Tustin W. C. T. U. will meet at 2 p. m. Friday, Dec. 11, at the home of Mrs. B. F. Beswick, northwest corner of B and Main streets, Tustin, with Dr. Harry E. Zaiser, of the Orange County general hospital, talking on "The Liquor Habit as Viewed by the Head of the County Hospital." Mrs. Mary Greenwood is program chairman.

Dr. Evalene Peo is in charge of the forum period, which will feature a talk by Miss Florence Warner of Santa Ana on "Social Service." Sarah M. G. Brown, county parliamentarian, will give a summary of the state president's address at the recent annual convention at Bakersfield. Mrs. Eleanor Duncan will conduct the devotional period and the Misses Audrey Pieper and Della Mae Gorton will entertain with piano solos. Mrs. William A. Hazen, president, will preside.

All members and friends of the Union have been invited to attend.

Following luncheon, the guests were taken to the Ragan home for contract, yellow chrysanthemums decorating the rooms where the tables were set. At the close of the afternoon, prizes were awarded to Mrs. Foster Lamm of Whittier, first, and second to Mrs. William Penn of Santa Ana.

The luncheon was the second of a series given by Mrs. Ragan, and the first of several courtesies that Mrs. McFadden will extend to her friends after the holidays.

CHURCH GROUP FETES COUPLE

A bridal couple, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Holland, were the incentives for a reception and shower given Friday evening at the Berman hall, by Mrs. Holland's many friends and co-members in the Christian and Missionary Alliance church. She was formerly Miss Peggy McGarvin.

The hall was festively decorated with Christmas wreaths and berries, and an artificial arch, twined with berries, with a white bell suspended from it, was placed at one end. The newlyweds stood beneath this to welcome the more than three-score people who attended the affair.

Following the reception a pleasing program was given, with Miss Helen Patterson singing "I Send a Little Gift of Roses." Miss Helen Crowther delivering a monologue on "Peggy McGarvin's Housekeeping," a solo and encore by Gaylord Hicks, "Absent," and "Grandma," a musical reading by Mrs. C. D. Hicks, "The Ballad of the Brook," accompanied by Mrs. Moody Schrock; a selection by the church mixed quartet, comprised of Esther Hoar, Moody Schrock, and Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Rhinard; and an original poem on the recent marriage, by Miss Sally Correll.

After many merry games and contests, the bride and groom were presented with dozens of lovely gifts of a miscellaneous nature, and when these had been suitably admired, refreshments were served by a committee consisting of Mrs. Basil Underwood, Mrs. Frank Garlock, Mrs. Jesse Hadlock, and Mrs. Moody Schrock. Mrs. C. D. Hicks was in charge of the program.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McGarvin of Beverly Hills were additional honored guests of the evening. He is the brother of the bride.

PARTY ON BIRTHDAY EVE

PRIMARY GROUP MEETS TUESDAY

When the Kindergarten Primary association meets tomorrow afternoon at the Horace Mann school in Anaheim, it will be to hear Miss Lova V. Sughrue speak on "The Whole Child—His Adjustment and Development in the School Program."

The sound film "Behind the Shadows" will be shown by a representative from the Orange county Tuberculosis association.

Newlyweds on Way East Today

A white Christmas in Fall River, Mass., is anticipated by Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Harrington (Jessie McClain), who left this morning for the east and a long honeymoon following their wedding on Saturday morning in the Fullerton Catholic parish house.

Since all of the bridegroom's family are in the east, the wedding was made a very simple affair, with only the bride's two sisters, Miss Alma McClain of Santa Ana and Mrs. Aubrey Dunbar of Fullerton, and her brother, Robert McClain, in attendance.

For her wedding dress, the attractive bride wore dark brown woolen suit with a flared tunic coat and white satin blouse, and an old brooch which had belonged to her late mother. Her corsage was of orchids.

Immediately after the ceremony, the newlyweds left for Pasadena, returning yesterday and held open house at the Dunbar home, in order that friends of the bride who had not met her new husband might have the opportunity of doing so before they left for the east.

The trip to Massachusetts is being made by train, and after spending the holidays at The Bleak House, the Harrington family home on the Cape, the pair will go to Florida, where they will remain until April.

Mrs. Harrington is well known in Santa Ana, where she attended high school. Mr. Harrington, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Harrington of Fall River, received his education at Northwestern university and assists his father in managing their properties in New England and in Florida.

P. T. A. FETES BRIDE-TO-BE

McKinley Parent-Teacher association honored one of its bride-elect teachers at its meeting last Friday evening at the home of Miss Albert Garthe, the members planning a kitchen shower for Miss Katherine Blank who will be married to Henry Vaughn of Newport Beach during the holidays.

The meeting was also the Christmas party of the P. T. A., decorations carrying out the Yule idea with poinsettias, gay streamers of Christmas bells, and a tree surrounded by gifts.

After a short business session, Miss Blank was asked to act as Santa Claus and pass out the presents, which all turned out to be for her.

Interesting films were shown, and dainty refreshments were served at the close. Mrs. Alfred Knight acted as co-hostess with Mrs. Garthe, and those enjoying the evening were:

Misses Blank, Mary Andrews, and Evangeline Stark, and the Mesdames Herbert Hildebrand, John Stark, Elmer Christensen, Alfred Knight, Floyd Mitchell, Della Elliot, Cecil Wilson, Paul Webb, Roy Kelecher, Albert Bradley, and Albert Garthe.

TUSTINITES AT CONVENTION

Among Tustinites attending the Farm bureau convention in Pasadena this week are four who are singing in the chorus and who participated in yesterday's sacred concert. They will also sing today, Wednesday and Friday.

The singers from Tustin are Fred L. Wilson, Walter W. Tautlinger, Mrs. William Cook and Mrs. L. R. Stearns.

Others going over for the meetings are Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Tautlinger, Mr. Cook, Mr. Stearns, Perry Cook, Chester Stearns, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Ostrander and Carl Young.

Mary Stoddard "Serious Seventeen" Wants to Wed Older Man: She Thinks Age Wouldn't Matter

By MARY STODDARD
"Serious Seventeen" loves a man 15 years her senior. He loves her, too, and has asked her to become his wife. Everyone advises her not to marry him now or even a few years later, as he would eventually be an old man while she is yet young. Although "Serious Seventeen" wants advice of others, it would be almost impossible to give a definite decision as to how the marriage might turn out. Most of us know of perhaps one or several May and December marriages that have ended happily. We also know of others which have not.

Whether a person is young or old, in the final analysis, he or she must be the one to decide anything as important as marriage. This girl may be serious-minded now, and he may be youthful now—but he has many years' head start. In ten years he may still be youthful and she may be even more serious. How about that?

Anyway, she wishes opinions from our readers. Here is her letter:

Dear Miss Stoddard: I have a problem I wish you and your readers to help me solve. I am a girl past 17. I take life more seriously than most girls of my age and do not care to join in the fun with the people of my age. I feel that I would rather be in the crowds of older people. And I would like to plan a little home of my own and get married. I do not enjoy playing games any more like the other girls do. It seems too childish to me.

Now I do not mean that I want to get married soon, but would like to next summer. I have fallen deeply in love with a man much older than I am. He is my second love. I have known him about a year and he now wants me to marry him.

Everyone tells me it would be foolish to marry a man 15 years my senior even if I waited a few years to make sure I wanted him. He and I have talked on that subject and he says he's sure we can get along and so do I. He says age doesn't make a great lot of difference if we really love each other. He doesn't seem that much older than I because he acts much younger than he really is. People say that when he is old I will still be young and he will not want to enjoy life with me.

He says different, which I believe is true. What do you say? He is that happy-go-lucky type who will never change—always looking for something enjoyable to do to make everyone happy.

I should like your readers' opinions about the whole situation. Should I marry this man ever, even if I wait a few years, or should I drop him?

I know I can never forget him for I have tried several times and have failed to do so. Even though I try again to forget him I know I shall always love him. He is a hard-working man and has not seen hard times yet. Maybe this might mean something in giving me an answer. Thanks—Serious Seventeen.

NARRATIVE ON KVOE

TONIGHT AND TOMORROW

Oakland 'Firebug' Story Scheduled at 7:30 This Evening

A strikingly different story of crime detection, one in which the police and fire departments joined forces, will be re-enacted in tonight's broadcast of "Calling All Cars" from KVOE at 7:30.

Tonight's true story is titled "The Fire Detective" and begins unostentatiously enough, apparently nothing more than a house fire. However, Fire Marshal Fred Carlson of Oakland made a thorough investigation and reported that the blaze had been maliciously started by someone who wanted to not only destroy the house but burn its occupants alive.

Tonight's interesting dramatization will be portrayed by a cast of notable west coast actors with Charles Frederick Lindsey as narrator; atmosphere music by Frederick Stark's orchestra.

Social Security Act Forum Topic

Old age benefits, what they amount to and other details of the Social Security Act will be discussed during tomorrow morning's Orange county forum broadcast from KVOE at 10:30, to be made by W. W. Wieman, director of the forum board, and members of his staff.

This will be the second broadcast concerning the Social Security Act.

The forum broadcasts are scheduled Tuesdays and Thursdays, with announcements of forum meetings scheduled Monday, Wednesdays and Fridays at the same hour.

'Blue,' Yodeler, Makes Bow Today

"Blue," the Drifting Yodeler, with his repertoire of appealing songs will be heard for the first time on KVOE this evening at 5 o'clock.

Although new to KVOE listeners, "Blue" has made many friends with his programs broadcast from many of the programs throughout the United States. Most of his songs are original and they have a distinctive appeal.

"Blue" will be scheduled daily except Sundays at the same hour and will welcome requests.

Shannon Quartet's Ballads on KVOE

A group of the best-liked of the old ballads will be harmonized by the Shannon quartet on KVOE at 7:15 tonight.

These gems of the past, which still retain their popularity, will include "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia," "On the Banks of the Wabash," and "The Sidewalks of New York."

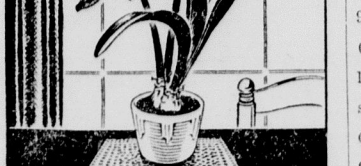

A brief discussion of how to achieve the utmost in foot-comfort for the most reasonable cost will be included in the presentation.

Easy-to-Raise Plants Thrive Indoors

Glorious amaryllis! Its exotic, long lasting blooms appear year after year, a rich reward for simple care.

Order a bulb now from your florist. Pot it right away, with neck exposed, in 3 parts garden soil, 1 part sand, and 1 part cow manure. Use a pot just an inch larger than the bulb, for amaryllis must be root-bound to bloom well.

Set in a dark, cool place and water sparingly until growth starts in February. When the plant is 3 inches high, move it to a sunny window for its spring burst of glory. Plunge pot and all in the garden for the summer.

Beautify your house the winter long with easy-to-raise plants. Our 32-page booklet tells how to plant, water, repot, ward off pests. How to force bulbs, raise greenery from sweet potatoes and other vegetables.

Send 10 cents for your copy of Making Plants and Flowers Grow Indoors to The Journal Home Service, 117 East Fifth street, Santa Ana, Calif. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Robert Montgomery and Elissa Landi appear in the "Radio Theatre" program tonight, taking leads in the romantic comedy "The Duchess and the Waiter." The program will be heard from KJH at 6 p. m.

Richard Crooks, tenor, and Margaret Crooks, soprano, will sing the "Parigi O Cara" from "La Traviata" tonight in their broadcast to be heard from KJH at 8:30 p. m.

More Than Cupid Behind the Scenes

IT IS becoming quite clear that all this opposition to the King's friendship for Mrs. Simpson goes a lot deeper than simply the antipathy of Britain's Conservative party and the Church of England to a marriage with an American divorcee.

For quite a while it has been apparent that England, like this country, has its "economic royalists." And that these "economic royalists" are bitterly opposed to any real royalist who dares to make a change.

There is a parallel between the forces opposing the King and those who opposed President Roosevelt last election. Neither group wants any experimentation.

The King for example had been pointing out the bad slum conditions he observed when he visited the Queen Mary, raising the question of how come such elaborateness and luxury on shipboard and such squalor ashore. That was disturbing. And many of the other things he did which were unconventional were also disturbing.

After his father died he started cleaning out some of the old retainers and putting younger men around him. That generated a lot of resentment in high places. He stayed on in St. James's Palace instead of bag-and-bag-gaging over immediately to Buckingham Palace. That, it seems, "wasn't done." And he didn't want a flock of bodyguards around wherever he went, or beplumed policemen stomping their hobnails up and down the street in front of his St. James's apartments.

A lot of the little personal incidents of his daily life were just too democratic to suit. He seemed to be insisting on living his own way rather than following the rule book of royalty. All that irked. Then the Simpson affair came along, and that gave those who already were lifting their eyebrows and shrugging their shoulders something on which to hang their hats, so to speak; made a target on which an opposition could draw bead.

And now it's at the crisis stage. We wonder, will the old British custom of compromise prevail and will they muddle out of this one?

Headline says, "Spanish Reds Appeal to League." Now if the league only had someone to whom it could appeal it might get matters settled.

Putting Wifie on the Payroll

IS YOUR wife discontented? Then pay her wages. This is the solution which Dr. Ralph Borsodi offers to solve discontent among the women folk.

Twenty-five million women, says Dr. Borsodi, suffer from inferiority complex because no recognized economic value is placed on their work as housewives and mothers.

Putting Friend Wife on the payroll isn't exactly a new idea. She has practically been there ever since she had a choice between staying home to run the household and going out for a job.

Many who stay at home are far from satisfied with their wages, but stay because they are in love with their jobs and because the business can't pay any more.

Others keep or get outside jobs because they have to, and probably too many do it because they'd rather keep in style than have families.

But then there is the wife who manages the family herself, takes hubby's paycheck and gives him as much as she thinks he needs for smokes and small change.

This is one time when the woman doesn't have the inferiority complex. Wonder what Dr. Borsodi would do about hen-pecked husbands?

Buenos Aires University made President Roosevelt Doctor Honoris Causa. Wait until the Liberty League hears about that!

Juvenile Shoplifters

THIS is the season of holly, peace on earth, good will toward men, mistletoe—and shoplifters. Every year stores mark up a heavy loss to petty sneak thieves who take advantage of the Yuletide bustle.

A large number of shoplifters belong to the professional class. Their tricks are cunning—their loot large. Like other criminals, they are usually caught and jailed.

But there also is a large group of children who are arrested every year in big cities for shoplifting. Most of them don't need the loot they steal. Many of them come from respectable families.

Again we blame the parents. Those children do not know the difference between right and wrong. They have not learned that property right must be respected.

A few moments of such training will reap many years of reward when the child becomes a mature, useful citizen.

A good old saying might be changed to "Peace on the waterfront and good will to all the public."

Buy Christmas Seals

OUR COPPER pennies take on new importance this month. For one cent we may purchase a tiny, colorful sticker—an Anti-Tuberculosis league Christmas seal. These seals are decorative. Place them on Christmas packages. Seal your letters with them.

Indeed, they are more than decorative. Each seal is another round of ammunition in the fight against tuberculosis. Ninety-five cents out of every dollar collected in the campaign remains in its home state.

Since the start of the league's campaign several years ago, tuberculosis has dropped from first place as the cause of death in the United States to seventh.

Buy as many Christmas seals as you can afford—and use them!

Whimsies of O. O. McIntyre

Diary: A mercy cable from the E. D. Coblenz and Will Haynes in Italy. So out in a nippy gale and passed Nella Webb, the astrology lady. And through the park and up Broadway, stopping in the Ansonia to see Theodore Dreiser and later to call on Jean Douglas, the poet lady.

At my stint until Georges Hiat, a Paris journalist, came and he described the war situation in Europe as "a mere touching of pawns with no major moves." Later with my lady to River House to Christie MacDonald's tea and she as lovely as in her starring days.

Lucy Virginia Long to dinner and I told her how Irwin Cobb thought her name so pretty he had so named a character in his radio program. And then took her to the tram for Greenwich and came upon Genevieve Cooper, theater bound, Courtney being off on a lecture tour.

To my notion the bravest flair of writing in some time was encompassed in the letter the talented Gouverneur Morris wrote to the mother of the young man found dead on his California estate. He seemed trying earnestly to console her yet could not hide his bitterness in being caught in the backwash of what he thought blundering investigations and thick-headed scandal. It is but just to chronicle. Morris has always been interested in careers of talented young folks. On occasions he has written me about this newcomer and that who showed promise. One of them, incidentally, authored a hit Broadway play last year.

The vast change in the standing of the professional pug is among the social phenomena of the period. Once a champion was hailed chiefly in the saloons and at sporting events and would be running a bar whose clientele was chiefly gamblers. Today Jack Dempsey addresses women's clubs, speaks at notable banquets and is often a polished figure in the drawing rooms. Tony Canzoneri is another regarded and hailed as a perfect type of little gentleman—welcome everywhere on Broadway. What many do not realize is that the person who put boxing on such a high plane and kept it there is the fighter perhaps least seen of all—Gene Tunney. Carl Hubbell and Lou Gehrig are doing the same thing for baseball.

Personal nomination for the hummiest of the recent times: Jerome Kern's "The Way You Look Tonight!"

Most cinema ladies who breeze into town from Hollywood toss out interviews that are 18 karat blab. But I snagged this from the metropolitan born Sylvia Sidney, who gave as excuse for her arrival: "I wanted to see the leaves turn."

In one of the brighter cafes a recent dinner hour, I noticed the Talmadge Trio—Norma, Constance and Natalie. The world grows older but they seemingly do not. They are still a startling resemblance to the three Brooklyn girls who made such a triple impression on the movies of the day. The tradition is to be carried on by Natalie's son, whose daddy was long the No. 1 Dead Pan—Buster Keaton.

Memories: Grandma's name, "shims," for any dish a bit mysterious. And when we played her for advance news of Xmas gifts she'd tell us mysteriously to expect a "silver wait awhile" and a "golden nixie." It would set us crazy.

Bagatelles: Mervyn LeRoy used to sell newspapers in front of San Francisco's Alcazar theater to his favorite matinee idol, Bert Lytell.

Now a successful director, LeRoy lives a neighbor to Lytell in Hollywood. Harry Salsinger, ace Detroit sports writer, was offered W. O. Charlie Hughes relays J. P. McEvoy's grand gag brought back from the Orient. A Chinese schoolboy was asked by his school teacher to tell who Tallyrand was. "An American fan dancer," answered the modern oriental, "and you can cut out that baby talk, too." (Copyright, 1936)

An English automobile manufacturer has just developed a new roadster which weighs only 400 pounds and can run on any country road which is three and a half feet wide. The car has a half ton center of gravity, and has a top speed of only 45 miles an hour. The engine is installed in the rear, so that leg room is available for two persons in the seat. It is said to travel 80 miles on a gallon of gasoline.

The Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON. — The career boys of the state department are headed for a congressional investigation this winter if some of the senate liberals have their way.

The senators have received numerous complaints accusing consular and diplomatic officials of secretly sabotaging and misrepresenting U. S. official policies.

One of the charges is that under-Secretaries in the London embassy, behind Ambassador Robert Bingham's back, have been assuring friends in the British foreign office that the President's peace declarations can be disregarded, that his statements are for home consumption only, and that if Great Britain should become embroiled in another European war it could depend on American assistance.

Another accuses members of Ambassador William E. Dodd's staff in Berlin of being uncandidly friendly with high Nazi chieftains, and refusing to give visas to refugees desiring to leave the country. This complaint states that one American consular officer in Germany is so pro-Nazi that he is known locally as "the Storm Trooper."

A consul in Switzerland is accused of recommending, as American correspondent for an important Swiss newspaper, a utility lawyer who wrote articles attacking New Deal spending policies as ruinous and Communistic.

UNDER FIRE The barrage of complaints has touched off a long-smouldering fire of resentment against the career boys in congressional circles.

There has been angry muttering about the service for several years. No action was taken because it was expected that Secretary Cordell Hull would crack down on some house-cleaning. But the lank Tennesseean has made no move in that direction. The career boys have become increasingly bold and self-assertive.

They had their wings severely clipped during the Coolidge regime. A sub-committee of the senate foreign relations committee, after conducting an investigation, broke up a clique that had built up a powerful machine in the state department for the aggrandizement of themselves and their friends.

This explosion put a quietus on the career men for a time. But with Hull displaying no intention to crack the whip, they have climbed out of their storm cellars and are again up to their old tricks.

TICKLISH QUESTIONS With Washington crackling with reports of cabinet changes, cabinet press conferences are becoming hazardous affairs. Newsmen bluntness put the cabinet members on the spot regarding their future.

Secretary Dan Roper had one such embarrassing experience when he gave one of his "Thanksgiving statements." The hand-out was one of the commerce chief's characteristic blubs, urging business to "cooperate" with the government.

The reporters read the statement, glumly, then one demanded: "What do you mean 'cooperate'?" Your business advisory council is not showing any signs of cooperating with Major Berry's industry-labor conference. "You don't understand the purpose of the council," explained

OUT OF HARMONY

To the Editor: Let me express my personal commendation for the statement on your front page and my appreciation of Mr. Skirvin's article from which it was taken. In my judgment the Christmas decorations, not only fail in expressing beauty which is a major feature of the Christmastide, but are entirely out of harmony with the spirit of the season.

With our President on a goodwill tour attempting to promote peace in the Western Hemisphere, and the greatest peace drive that the world has ever seen sweeping our country, these decorations are out of harmony with the need of the hour as well as with this Christmas festival. In fact they present a pagan ideal which expresses a past time barbarism rather than the spirit of the "Prince of Peace." The Christian conscience is outraged by them. GEORGE A. WARNER.

Preserve the Useful War Debts

FOR THE last four years the French government has been eloquently silent on the matter of the war debt. Now the Blum ministry has signified its willingness to open negotiations, leading to a settlement of the four billions owed this country. The suggestion implies cooperation with the British on a similar understanding. The French piously propose to discuss the subject "in the interest of world peace and economic stability."

Of course, no one supposes that the thrifty French have undergone a change of heart on the debt question. Their obligation is no more righteous now than it was four years ago. But certain alarming events have come to pass since the French decided to extend the Hoover moratorium into a definite repudiation. Fascism rears its menacing head in a closing circle on France. Across the Rhine, beyond the Alps and over the Pyrenees the forces of an ominous significance. It means that France is genuinely alarmed over the prospect of conflict. Those defaulted debts served one useful purpose, at least. They have acted as a brake on the war-mad large-scale international borrowing so long as international promises are worthless. And when nations cannot borrow they are not likely to rush headlong into the wanton wastefulness of war.

France needs friends more than at any time since the Armistice. And rich friends, when war is looming, are more valuable than other kinds. Friendship with America is more than essential to French plans of defense. The war

Skinny Skribbles

Around and About Town

With C. R. SKIRVIN

The holiday buying has started. It is only necessary to come down town for convincing evidence. Pedestrians, with arms full of packages all neatly wrapped in holiday attire can be seen on every business street. It proves that a lot of people are not going to be late shoppers. Buy early and avoid the rush is good advice. You have more time to make your selections, and get a better opportunity to choose from the larger stock. And then I'm afraid I won't get any present if you do not shop early.

Now that the dry spell has been fractured there is a more hopeful feeling among the ranchers that the predictions of the scientists and the prophets and that we will be favored with plenty of rain. So far I have found unanimous favor for this forecast.

When two or more men are gathered together the subject usually drifts to business. A conversation is in progress in a railway coach between a group of men who were reporting on conditions in their home town. All but one had given their experience, and when he was asked as to the condition of his business he replied that it was good. Then they wanted to know the nature of his business: "Oh," he replied, "I'm the postmaster."

A few of my friends who attended the Santa Ana-Los Angeles football contest report they enjoyed the warm blankets they carried with them as much as the game.

It is only 15 more shopping days until Christmas. What are you going to do about it? All I can do is call your attention to something you already know, but so far have neglected. If you have a Santa Claus in your house whisper to him that the days are gliding swiftly by, and if he means anything to you he will take the hint and start his shopping expedition.

Used Bill Cole Saturday morning as safety device to cross a busy intersection. He assured me the protection was ample, that even the automobiles stopped for him so they wouldn't get a damaged fender.

When Jack Barnett goes to lunch he wants something to eat. He doesn't just mess around. So when he arrives at his favorite cafe the chef takes notice and beautiful preparations are made to appease the aforesaid Barnett. Saturday the waiter delivered a loaf of bread, a full sized pork roast, bunch of celery, half a crate of tomatoes, and a bill for $12.35. Jack refused the bill and went to work on the lunch.

When I see a patron operating a motorcycle, and he says, "Well, I can't near winning," it always reminds me of the days when we had near beer.

I'm not fond of motorcycles, but when I see one coming pattering toward me, and the operator has a passenger, my spinal column starts to quiver. I often wonder how much farther they are going to get before a collision takes place. Same is more often true of the automobile, but the motorcycle makes so much noise that it probably increases the thought of an accident. Motorcycles cover so much space in such a short time that it doesn't take long for something to happen.

Met a party the other day who was looking for 4 per cent money. He wanted to do a little refinancing. If he succeeds I would like to have a confidential talk with him.

Bruce McDaniel in the M. O. D. official publication, "Citrus Leaves," makes this pertinent reference: There is an old negro spiritual, which runs, "The old sheep done know no more, but the young lamb must find the way." It is a sound philosophy to be taken by some of our young extremists who seem to think that everything of the past is useless.

THE EMPTY STOCKING

Dear Skinny: Read your periphrastic re: Mickey Mouse and Christmas decorations. Wonder if this may be the answer? There will be plenty little "empty stockings," expectantly hung up for Santa's gifts, whose owners will find still empty—or at best—with but a stick of 5c candy or penny sucker, for probably Mickey Mouse may have pecked in to nibble the candy and eaten a hole in the toes so no candy nor toys will be there and the kids will rise—"an empty stocking to find." Money may be plentiful we think—cause of activity in building—increasing rents, but for whom is it plentiful? Many will go without even getting a glimpse of Santa because of having to meet excess rentals. No wonder money is plentiful for some. "One who knows and feels it."
